ames B. McNamara, Responsible for 21 Deaths in Times Explosion, to Prison for Life John J., Secretary Iron Workers, Gets 15 Years Judge Admits He Withheld Extreme Penalty Because It Appears Better Part of Wisdom

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5. Two brothers—James Barnabas id John J. McNamara, natives of Cincinnati, O., the one slim, droop-houldered and sallow faced, with small eyes, and the other a broad, obust man of ruddy countenance felt today the strong hand of istice which they had long had thought to evade, the former being ntenced to imprisonment for life and the latter to 15 years in the ate penitentiary.

It was the retaliatory action of the law against those lawless iethods which John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, thought ecessary to pursue in coping with what he regarded as the all powerıl opposition of capital.

Though the younger brother, James B., in formally presenting is confession to the court today, declared that he intended no murer when he placed 16 sticks of dynamite beneath the Los Angeles imes building on October 1, 1910, when 21 persons were killed by ie explosion, John J. McNamara, recounting tonight to his attorneys is principles, broke down as he muttered that he fought against reat odds in the best way he could. It was a sequel to the courtoom scene earlier today, when he received his sentence in tears of bject surrender.

For the crime of the Times building plosion, James B. was punished; for recting the destruction by dynamite the Llewellyn Iron works, wherein lives were lost, John J. was sennced. A few hours later the word ent forth that subpoenas would be sued for both men to appear before e federal grand jury to divulge furer details of their dynamiting coniracies.

U. S. Government to Step In.

The United States government now ll demand of them information con- [illegible] idges and factories where labor warre was involved.

Something of the same fear of terrism brought by those explosions tted through a crowd of nearly 15,- persons today as it surged back and rth around the jail expecting to see e McNamaras taken out into the en on their way to the Hall of Records where previous scenes in the trial d been enacted. But the court and unsel, taking cognizance of possible wlessness, held the final session in a urtroom adjoining the jail and the prisoners were taken thither over an interior bridge passageway.

"I never carried a gun before, since the McNamara affair started," confided Samuel L. Browne, chief of the state's department of investigation, when his detectives reported to him that suspicious characters by the scores were scattered in the crowd.

Judge Bordwell changed his mind several times, but took final precaution and held court in the small chamber beside the jail.

Crowds Beg for Entrance.

Outside, the crowd begged for entrance. An army of policemen fought [illegible] moved back and forth in confusion and even many who really were entitled to admission were denied that privilege, because of the mixup over the place for the final setting.

In the Hall of Records, eight floors and stairways were choked with the curious. Only 100 persons saw the two brothers led through the narrow passageway into the chamber beside the jail.

A supreme ordeal faced James B. McNamara, who worried as to whether or not the court would inflict the extreme penalty. John J. McNamara, not liable to such severity, was anxious for his brother's sake. The 24 minutes of procedure that decided the fate of the two men went forward slowly. It was quiet almost to the point of monotony. Pleas of guilty were voiced with the assurance of District Attorney John D. Fredericks that he would urge clemency.

But whatever fortitude the two men had mustered for the occasion received a setback and dismay threatened them for a moment as Judge Bordwell, in passing sentence on James B. McNamara seemed to be inclined to inflict the death penalty. And though it did not come the severity of Judge Bordwell's remarks cut deep and John J.

REVIEWS SUGAR SITUATION

Witness Says California Beet Sugar Men Raised Price "Because It Was Good Business".

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Representative Baker of California drew from W. T. Willett, a sugar expert witness before the house investigating committee today, the magnitude of the profit made by the beet sugar interests on the rise to the consumer which began last June.

Mr. Willett said that when the New York price of sugar advanced, a corresponding rise was announced in the west, although the beet sugar refineries of Colorado and California had an enormous supply of their product on hand.

Mr. Willett, who earlier in the testimony said that sugar had drifted back to approximately 6 cents a pound, testified that the farmer who raised the sugar beets got no benefit from the rise. He was paid the same price for his beets that was named in the contracts dated months before.

"Why did the beet sugar manufacturers of California raise their prices just because New York refiners, 3,000 miles away, did so?" Mr. Baker asked.

"Because it was good business."

"That is what is known as 'good business' is it"?

"Yes, of course. If they had not done so, they would have been called fools if they gave away 2 cents profit on a pound"

Mr. Willett gave the committee much statistical data on the world's operations in sugar. He denounced the gratuity given the Hawaiian sugar planters by free entry to the United States and expressed the opinion that free raw sugar would starve the beet [illegible]

BUREAUCRATIC SYSTEM FLAYED

ACTUAL STARVATION IS CHARGED TO IT

Montana Senator Bitterly Arraigns Government's Methods in Irrigation Work

CHICAGO, Dec. 5. Sensational charges that "the bureaucratic system of the department of the interior, together with red tape," was retarding the irrigation projects of the country and that thousand of persons in Montana are starving because of the system, were made before the National Irrigation congress at its opening session today. Fred Whitside, a state senator and a delegate from Montana, said that 50 per cent of the money spent by the government on irrigation was for "supervision" and that in one instance 17 supervisors were empolyed to watch eight men dig a tunnel.

"The Milk river project in northern Montana," he said, "although begun in 1903, is not anywhere near completion, as only 2,000 out of the 240,000 acres had been watered and while one-fourth of the money has been spent less than one-twelfth of the preliminary work has been done.

"An instance of the extravagance," the speaker continued, "is shown by the abandonment, just announced, of a part of the project which cost $245,000. That much money is to be thrown away just as flippantly as if it were no more than postage stamps. The bureaucratic system in the department covers up all the errors of the engineers, and the landholders who have to pay the bills have no means of finding out where the money is going.

People Are Starving.

"Meantime the people who went out there, with visions of a happy life and automobiles are without employment and are starving. They can't even keep a dog. The situation is appalling. If they leave their stakes to seek employment elsewhere a dozen government detectives swoop on the place to investigate the outrage."

Mr. Whitside cited instances in which, he said, men carried bags of flour on their backs for miles across the desert to save their families from starvation. All the money spent on irrigation projects, he asserted, was levied on the property so that many of the holders, unable to produce any crops because of lack of water, had to sell out.

Action of the congress also was asked on a resolution offered by George M. [illegible], a delegate from Texas, who denounced so-called "fake" irrigation schemes. He said these schemes were gotten up to extort money from "land hungry" people in the east and threw discredit upon the whole "back to the land" movement. The resolution was referred to a committee.

LOWER CABLE RATES

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—As a result of the movement to secure a reduction in cable rates between Europe and America announcement was made today that British cable and postal authorities, in conjunction with the Western Union Telegraph company, had arranged a system of cable letters and deferred press messages costing as low as 5 cents a word. The new form schedule, which becomes effective tomorrow, is based on the principle of deferred service and is as follows

BUSINESS MEN IN NORTHERN COAL FIELDS ACT

Want Shafroth to Preserve Order—Governor Denies Operators' Charges

DENVER, Dec. 5.—According to press dispatches tonight from Longmont, Colo., the business men of Lafayette, one of the mining towns in the northern Colorado coal fields, have begun a movement to have all the commercial associations in Boulder county unite in demanding Governor Shafroth to send state troops into the coal fields to preserve order.

Replying to a published statement by Governor Shafroth today denying the charges made by the operators that by his attitude in the past he had encouraged lawlessness, the operators this afternoon issued a statement in rebuttal of the governor's denial.

The statement includes an affidavit by W. C. Wilson, former subboss of the Hecla mine, near Louisville, to the effect that in August, 1910, when in the offices of the United Mine Workers of America in Denver, he was twice asked by the officers of that organization to "procure an empty beer keg, fill it with dynamite, attach thereto a long fuse and percussion cap" and roll it down a hill back of a boarding house near the Gorham mine at Marshall at night, and so blow up 50 nonunion miners said to have been living there

POINDEXTER CRITICISES COMMERCE COURT DECREE

Introduces Bill Into Senate for Abolition of Tribunal Calls It Superfluous

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—In introducing a bill for the abolition of the court of commerce, Senator Poindexter today sharply criticised the decision of that court in the Spokane rate cases He said the effect of the court's decision was to destroy the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce law, as well as the power of the interstate commerce to perform its function.

Mr. Poindexter said that "in every important case where the petition was filed by a railroad company, the commerce court has enjoined the order of the interstate commerce commission.

"It has destroyed the effectiveness of this commission," he said. "The commission, by its good work for years, has won the confidence of the people. The Spokane case was carefully considered by the commission for years. Conclusions were tested by application to actual business before being ordered into effect, yet the raw commerce court, without special experience, on a brief hearing, enjoined this carefully considered and thoroughly tested order.

"The court is entirely superfluous, has grossly exceeded its authority and will be constantly prone to arrogate to itself functions which do not belong to, which are not judicial and which can never be properly exercised by a judicial tribunal. It should be abolished [illegible]"

MEXICAN REBELS LYNCHED BY MOB

"CHE" GOMEZ AND 8 FOLLOWERS VICTIMS

General Reyes Returns to His Native Soil and Capture Is Expected Soon

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—"Che" Gomez, whose rebellion at Juchitan resulted in a clash between President Madero and the governor of Oaxaca, was lynched this afternoon at Rincon Antonio. Eight of Gomez's partisans met a like fate

Gomez, on his way to the capital with eight of his followers, was taken from the train at Rincon, Antonio, Oaxaca, yesterday and placed in jail by order of Governor Juarez, despite a passport signed by the executive. He was taken from the jail by a mob of residents, augmented by hundreds from the neighboring regions, marched two miles from town and shot to death.

Local authorities appealed to Governor Juarez at San Geronimo for troops. Before the troops arrived, however, the guard of nine rurales constituting the military force of the hamlet, was overpowered and the eight Gomez followers were taken from the jail into the hills. At the approach of the troop train the mob stopped and without delay the prisoners were riddled with bullets and the assassins fled.

Reports from San Geronimo tonight were that mobs of Oaxacans paraded the streets shouting "Viva Juarez," "Viva Oaxaca Libre," and "Death to Madero."

Among the lynchers were many of the former followers of Gomez, who declared he had betrayed him

Arms Shipped South.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—Agents of the Mexican government here report that 1,000 rifles and a large quantity of ammunition were shipped from a point near Gulfport, Miss., on the evening of November 28, destined to some point in Yucatan.

TORREON, Mex Dec 5.—Alarmed by the reports that this city is soon to be the scene of an insurrection, the foreign colonies have petitioned the consular officers to request military protection. Secret service agents of the government claim to have information that 500 rifles and 20,000 rounds of ammunition have been distributed among the laboring men of the district who have accepted them with the understanding that they will rise in revolt in favor of General Reyes. Detectives say the uprising was planned for December 10

SOCIALISTIC TICKET IS DEFEATED

Los Angeles Retains "Good Government" Ticket by Two to One Vote

HARRIMAN CRIES FRAUD

Defeated Candidate Loses Most Votes in Precincts Counted His Strongholds

LOS ANGELES Dec 5.—Estimates based on a partial count of the vote at 10:30 o'clock tonight place the majority for Mayor George Alexander over Job Harriman Socialist at more than 50,000 votes. In 110 precincts complete out of 317, Alexander's net gain over his primary vote was 25,990. Alexander carried Harriman's home precinct by 1,587 to 192 Partial returns indicate that prohibition has been defeated two to one

Socialism grappled with its opponents under the "Good Government" banner at the ballot box here today and was defeated

Prohibition the other big issue in the municipal campaign, received scant attention from the vote counters tonight and the fate of the drastic "dry" ordinance remains uncertain, though the probability is that it has been heavily defeated.

Forced to yield first place in the nominating ballot October 31, when the vote cast totaled 45,000, Mayor George Alexander polled today apparently more than a two to one majority over Job Harriman, Socialist, in a vote which totaled 140,380. When Harriman gained a plurality of 3,000 over the mayor in the October primary, the registration was approximately 75,000. Today, 187,000 persons, including 85,000 women, were entitled to vote.

Predictions Reversed.

Ninety per cent of the registration on the west side, where the vote was light in the primary, was voted today, while on the east side, Harriman's stronghold, there was a falling off in comparison. The women of the west side outvoted the men. The reverse was true in the precincts where Harriman was the stronger in the primary. But the balance of power, which the women were credited with having prior to the astounding finale of the McNamara case last Friday, did not figure in the result.

"Persons who would not vote for Alexander simply stayed away from the polls," Chairman S. C. Graham of the Good Government organization declared tonight, in predicting a majority of at least 30,000 for Alexander.

Harriman was in conference with his campaign manager, Alexander Irvine of New York, early in the evening. He declared that gross frauds had been perpetrated by the opposition, but refused to concede his defeat.

The victorious ticket consists of Mayor Alexander and nine councilmen made up of bankers, lawyers, storekeepers and realty brokers

On the defeated Socialist ticket, beside Harriman, the lawyer, there were one negro junk dealer, a former editor of one of the local morning papers, two iron moulders and several labor leaders.

Many Ballots Scratched.

One feature of the balloting was the scratching, which was early apparent of Joseph A. Scott, candidate for reelection to the school board, who also was one of the attorneys for the McNamaras

It became apparent early that the trouble expected to develop on account of the feeling engendered by the McNamara case would not occur during the balloting. The peace insurance" army of 1,000 officers, detailed by Chief of Police Sebastian and Sheriff Hammell, had little to do. For this the women were given credit

The women were treated with the greatest gallantry.

Many went to the polls propelling baby carriages, and often father took care of baby while mother voted.

In one precinct a puzzled woman voted in favor of the prohibition or-

President's Third Annual Message to Congress Upholds the Sherman Law

SUPERVISE CORPORATIONS

Proposes Bureau With Powers Akin to Those of Interstate Commerce Commission

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Taft's third annual message to congress devoted exclusively to the Sherman antitrust act and the trust question in general, was read in congress today.

The president defended the Sherman act as interpreted by the supreme court of the United States, indicated plainly his opposition to the repeal or amendment of this statute, but suggested that congress pass a federal incorporation law and supplemental legislation that "would describe and denounce methods of competition that are unfair.

To supervise corporations chartered under federal law, President Taft proposed the creation of an executive bureau, or commission, with powers akin to those of the interstate commerce commission.

Speaking of the much discussed dissolution of the tobacco trust, the president declared that in his opinion "not in the history of American law has a decree more effective for such a purpose been entered by a court."

Portions of his message of January, 1910, proposing federal incorporation, were referred to in this message.

Renews Recommendations.

I renew," continued the president, "the recommendations of the enactment of a general law providing for the voluntary formation of corporations to engage in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations. It is even more manifest now than it was then that the denunciation of conspiracies in restraint of trade should not, and does not, mean the denial of organizations large enough to be intrusted with our interstate or foreign trade It has been made more clear now than it was then that a purely negative statute like the antitrust law may well be supplemented by specific provisions for the building up and regulation of legitimate national and foreign commerce."

The supplemental legislation the president desires, is explained in a paragraph, "The attempt and purpose to suppress a competitor by underselling him at a price so unprofitable as to drive him out of business, or the making of exclusive contracts with customers under which they are required to give up associations with other manufacturers and numerous kindred methods for stifling competition and effecting monopoly, should be described with sufficient accuracy in a criminal statute on the one hand to enable the government to shorten its task by prosecuting single misdemeanors instead of an entire conspiracy, and, on the other hand, to serve the purpose of pointing out more in detail to the business community what must be avoided.'

Mr Taft did not attempt to set forth the details of the federal incorporation act he recommended but suggested

WHOLESALE ROBBERIES CAUSE ARREST OF TWO

A disclosure was made yesterday through the arrest by the county authorities of John Martin and Jake Chenoweth, which it is thought will result in the arrest of others and clean up a series of robberies that have been bothering the farmers of the Ramah neighborhood for several months.

For some time the farmers have been missing potatoes, beans, corn and other food in night thefts. Last May one farmer lost 2,800 pounds of potatoes, which had been kept in a cellar. During the night someone drove into the yard with a wagon and took his whole supply.

Last September there was another robbery in which a farmer lost $60 worth of beans that he had stored in his cellar for winter use. At intervals of a week or two apart the robbers would visit different places in the Ramah section and escape with a load of vegetables.

Suspicion first rested on Martin and Chenoweth on account of the amount of money they were spending An attempt was made to arrest them a week ago, but Chenoweth left the country. He returned Monday and yesterday morning they were arrested at their homes near Ramah and brought to this city. It is understood that the two young men confessed to M. W. Purcell assistant district attorney, and implicated several other well known young men of the Ramah neighborhood

Martin and Chenoweth were arrested on charges of burglary and larceny. Before Justice O. R. LAW RETALIATES

McNamara's accustomed expression, half smile and half sneer, as he fought his battles, passed into one of sad dejection.

Older Brother Deeply Moved.

"I never saw a man change so much within a few minutes," afterward declared Judge Bordwell. Attorneys close by saw tears in the eyes of John J. McNamara. It was the older brother, who received the lesser sentence, who quivered. The younger man, the confessed dynamiter, took his sentence calmly, almost without comprehension of what lay before him. As he resumed his seat he caught the eye of a newspaper man a few feet from him and smiled in recognition—a peculiar smile from a face of sunken cheeks and deep set eyes.

Judge Bordwell talked slowly and with supreme gravity. Unused to criminal trials, he pronounced his first sentence of importance outside of the civil cases which he has been handling for a score of years. Affected himself by the drama of the moment, as determining the destinies of the two brothers who together confessed having caused great destruction of life and property, the judge gazed steadily at the prisoners as he pronounced his judgment.

James B. McNamara arose first. He wore dark clothing and a white tie, to which his white face gave added contrast. District Attorney Fredericks made a brief statement of the case, reading the prisoner's confession for the first time. As he spoke the court room was still. James B. McNamara stared hard out of the windows opposite him.

Prosecutor Asks Consideration.

"There are two sentences," said Fredericks, with deliberation, "which the court may pronounce, possibly of equal severity. One is death and the other is life imprisonment. However, in the minds of a great many persons and, possibly, in the mind of the defendant, I do not know but I assume, the sentence of imprisonment for life would be considered in some degree a less punishment than the punishment of death. There has been no dickering or bargaining in this matter. Counsel on the other side are well aware of the usual custom of granting some degree of consideration to a defendant who has pleaded guilty—not on the ground of mercy, but on the ground of service to the state.

"This defendant has pleaded guilty. By so doing he has settled that which for all time, in the minds of a great many, would have been a doubtful question. He has served the state in other ways, and it is my judgment, that some small degree of consideration should be extended to him because of that fact."

Judge Asks One Question.

To that point the prisoner was calm and unmoved, but suddenly the judge startled him.

"The court," began Judge Bordwell, turning to the prisoner, with an inquiring look, "desires to ask you one question, and one only, Mr. McNamara. You have stated in the writing which the district attorney has read, that you placed 16 sticks of dynamite, known as 80 per cent pure, in the Times building and caused it to be exploded. The question I ask you is this: Did you seek to purchase, for that same purpose, dynamite of a higher degree of percentage?"

The defendant paused and seemed to lose his composure. Finally he spoke:

"No, your honor; no, sir."

"You did not?"

"No, sir."

"There is very little or no ray of comfort, Mr. McNamara," continued Judge Bordwell, "in the assertion by you that you did not intend to destroy life. The widows and orphans and the bereaved parents will look upon that statement at this time as a mockery. The circumstances are against you in making any such claim. A man who would put 16 sticks of 80 per cent dynamite in a building full of explosives—I do not now refer to the explosives of which you may have had no knowledge—I really mean combustible material—I say that a man who under these circumstances would place a dynamite charge of that quantity in such a building, in which you, as a printer, knew gas was burning in many places, and in which you knew there were scores of human beings toiling, must have had no regard whatever for the lives of his fellow beings. He must have been a murderer at heart.

"You Merit Maximum Penalty."

"You well merit the maximum punishment prescribed by law—"

The prisoner quivered and his head drooped. He twisted his fingers in his hands behind him and then lifted his head again.

"That the judgment of the court does not condemn you to death upon the gallows is due to the existence of no extenuating circumstances whatever, but because it appears to the court the part of wisdom to do otherwise.

"It is the judgment of the court that as a punishment for the crime of murder in the first degree, to which you have pleaded guilty, you shall be confined in the state prison of this state at San Quentin for and during your natural life.

"You may be seated."

As relieved as anyone could be with a life sentence confronting him, the prisoner sat down beside his brother. The big man arose and the little brother eyed him affectionately.

After the court had read the indictments charging that he had pleaded guilty of having caused the destruction of the Llewellyn iron works in this city, the district attorney began a brief statement, and James B. whispered to John J. that he could sit down while the district attorney talked. The man about to be sentenced was plainly moved by what the court had said to his younger brother. From across the room a ray of sunlight streaked and sparkled against the tears in his eyes.

Prosecutor Again Urges Leniency.

"There were no lives lost in this case," remarked District Attorney Fredericks, "and while the destruction of property was considerable it was not great."

He cited the custom of leniency where a defendant pleaded guilty and continued:

"The extreme penalty which the law could inflict for this offense would be life imprisonment, and all I would suggest in that connection would be that the court take into consideration the probable life remaining to this defendant and leave him, at the end of his term, a few hours of freedom; not as a matter of mercy, not as a matter of consideration, not as a matter that he has earned or is entitled to, but because I believe it is a wise policy of the state, when a man surrenders himself, gives up and pleads guilty, and because of other services rendered to the state, that some small consideration—not much, but some—be extended."

The defendant arose again.

Fifteen Years for John J.

"Mr. McNamara," said Judge Bordwell, "you have heard the court's remarks to your brother, and, in no small degree, sir, they undoubtedly apply to you. And, as in his case, the fact that the court may not mete out to you the extreme penalty of the law is in no degree due to any doubt that you merit it, but simply because it appears to be the part of wisdom to do otherwise. The judgment the court now pronounces upon your plea of guilty to this charge is that you be confined in the state prison in San Quentin for the period of 15 years.

"You may be seated."

"Anything further?"

The district attorney indicated that it was customary to ask the occupation of the defendants.

"Is that a matter that the court should take up at this time? That is a new section, isn't it?" queried the judge.

District Attorney Fredericks referred to the statute, declaring that it was designed "to supply information for the prison officials.

The brothers were again asked to arise.

James B. said he "hoped" his trade was "printing" and John J. said "structural iron worker." The prosecuting attorney reminded the court that it had 30 days in which to make a report on the criminal character of the prisoners for the prison officials, and the proceedings were concluded.

Led Back to Jail.

The prisoners were led quickly back to the jail by Sheriff Hammell. Around the table where counsel had been seated the spectators gathered, some congratulating the prosecuting attorney.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, sat in silence throughout the proceedings. At the end he arose and with his associate attorneys followed the sheriff into the jail to console the prisoners.

Outdoors a disappointed crowd lingered. When it learned that the McNamaras had been sentenced while it was waiting for them to come out of the jail on the expected trip to the hall of records, there was much dissatisfaction, but the officers dispersed the multitude. For a long time, however, a number of persons lingered about the jail in the hope of seeing the McNamaras hustled away to the train for San Quentin.

In his office in the hall of records District Attorney Fredericks discussed the affair.

It was pointed out to him that the age of John J. McNamara as given by himself on the jail records was 34 years and a sentence of 15 years, which means nine years and two months on good behavior, would bring the prisoner's age only to 43.

Looks 47 Anyway.

"Well, I didn't fix the number of years," said Mr. Fredericks, "but I suppose the court took into account John J. McNamara's apparent age, which certainly seems like 47 years. In fact I always have had the impression that he was that old. After nine years in state prison he will be an old man.

"Some of the statements from union leaders repudiating the McNamaras are sincere and some are not," Mr. Fredericks continued. "Some of the men who are making the loudest public utterances are implicated in the dynamiting outrages for which these men were sentenced today.

"As for John J. McNamara, I think there is nothing that he knows concerning this case which I do not know. It is not necessary for him to make any further statement.

"The case is not yet closed. I believe that never since the Civil war has the United States passed through such a crisis as was involved in this tremendous case. I believe that this trial and the ultimate results will mark the passing of the bludgeon, the walking delegate and the dynamiter from the ranks of union labor. If this happens, as I am confident it will, labor will have cleansed itself and untold good will follow."

Subpoenas Drawn Up.

Later in the afternoon Oscar Lawler, appointed today to act as special prosecutor for the government in its investigation of the alleged dynamiting conspiracies, talked at length with District Attorney Fredericks and members of his staff. Books and papers and details of the evidence in the McNamara case were on a table before them. Edward E. Regan, assistant United States district attorney, joined the gathering for a short time and when he returned to his office, it was said the subpoenas were drawn for the appearance of the McNamara brothers before the federal grand jury which adjourned today until Thursday. They may be served tomorrow. Today's conference is said to have been chiefly concerned with the confessions of Ortie E. McManigal, whose case has not yet been disposed of by the state. McManigal's story will be used to lay the preliminary foundations for the federal inquiry here.

Mr. Lawler, who will be in charge of the inquiry, declared that he had not yet decided upon the course the investigation would take and in today's conference he was simply talking over plans.

"I do not know yet when the McNamaras will be subpoenaed," he said. "It is a subject we have not fully discussed among ourselves."

One of the attorneys for the defense declared:

"It would do no good to subpoena the McNamaras, as they would not tell anything, anyway," but District Attorney Fredericks intimated otherwise.

In jail tonight the McNamaras read afternoon newspaper accounts of their sentences, and John J. McNamara, speaking for both, said:

"We are satisfied. We are resigned to our fate. We are ready to start our sentences at once. We are ready to start for San Quentin on 15 minutes' notice.

"We wish to express our appreciation of Sheriff Hammell's treatment of us here and likewise all the jailers, and hope we will get as humane treatment in the state prison."

Was Hopeless, Says Darrow.

"Nothing but the gallows at the end," is the outcome predicted tonight by Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, as chief of counsel for the defense, "if the trial had run to a verdict and to subsequent appeals." For the first time Mr. Darrow cited specific instances of evidence which he said it would have been impossible to refute. Even to have put James B. McNamara on the stand in his own behalf would have been hopeless, he declared.

"Judge Bordwell's statement says that it was proposed by the defense that James B. McNamara should plead guilty and even take a death sentence if his brother could be free," Darrow was told.

"Well," replied Darrow, "I've denied that charge so often that I'm not going to do it over again now."

Mr. Darrow's statement is as follows:

Entered Case With Reluctance.

"I entered this case with the greatest reluctance, and only after the most earnest persuasion. I did it unselfishly. I have for many years given my time and best ability and my life to the cause of labor, and the poor.

"I have been here six months and have spent many troubled days and sleepless nights trying to run down every clue and any possible investigation, the best I could for my clients and the cause that I served.

"I had able associates who gave me their efforts and their best service through it all.

"From the first there was never the slightest chance to win. To those who say it would have been better to have gone to trial and suffer complete defeat I would call attention to the fact that there were 30 or 40 hotel registers, three in Los Angeles, many in San Francisco and others in different parts of the country to be used against us. There were scores of witnesses to identify James B. McNamara as being present practically on the very day and one, at least, in the building. There was overwhelming evidence of all kinds, which no one could have surmounted if they would.

Not Even an Alibi.

"If the state had put on its case, we could not even have put the defendant on the stand to deny the facts. We could not prove an alibi. We could not prove he was not here. The failure to do so would have been as much of an admission as it was today. We were confronted with the situation of dragging our case, perhaps for years with nothing but the gallows at the end, and no chance to raise any doubt in a thinking mind, and, in the meantime, collecting money from thousands of persons who could not know the facts. To go on under such circumstances would have been madness and only postponed an evil until it would have been a still greater evil, and the consequences graver than they are now.

"All of this was thoroughly understood by my associates and no one hesitated about accepting it. We acted as we thought right and best and will take the consequences of the act. I can conceive of no way in which we could justify ourselves and not save the lives of our clients. Our first duty, as lawyers and men, was to the lives in our charge, and our duty to the cause for the same action.

Reconciled to Result.

"From the beginning I have been watching and working to this end. We have accomplished it. I am reconciled to the result. For myself, personally, I have spent many years in this cause. If I had not believed in it, I would have abandoned it when I was young and ambitious. In some form I will continue in it to the end. I have fought this and all my battles without hatred or malice to any one, recognizing that in this great drama and all that is connected with the case, all men of both sides are helpless as to themselves and acting a part that is forced upon them by a bitter conflict which only right feeling between capital and labor can ever end.

"If the people misjudge my motive, I can only say for myself that I have acted unselfishly and from devotion all along and I have always been ready and fairly able to take upon myself all the responsibilities for my actions and I shall continue to do it so long as I have the strength.

Doesn't Beg Sympathy.

"I do not beg anybody's friendship or sympathy in this matter. I have the consciousness that I have done everything that I could do, and have acted in the way that is best for all in this world wide conflict.

"If anything more is asked from me by either side, they will find me ready when the time comes."

Attorney Joseph Scott, of counsel for the defense, issued a statement declaring he had participated in the case because of a desire to give the McNamaras a fair and impartial trial.

"I indorse the efforts now being made to bring labor and capital together in this city and will be glad to give any feeble efforts at my disposal to accomplish this result," he said.

"I realize keenly, and with intense regret the dead line that is drawn in this city between capital and labor. He who first crosses this line to the other side and is received in a spirit of mutual confidence will be a knight errant in establishing a substantial basis for peace between these two battle-scared forces.

"As to anything back of the motives actuating this sudden climax to the case, I don't think it is necessary for me to say to my friends, or even to those who may not know me, that I personally should welcome the most rigid investigation."

W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer-general of Persia, whose dismissal is demanded by Russia.

TRIES TO SAVE MONEY AND BURNS TO DEATH

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Dec. 5.—Patrick Lewis, 50 years old, night watchman at the Moffat Coal Mining company's plant at Phippsburg, near here, was burned to death this morning through his efforts to save several hundred dollars of his earnings from destruction in a fire in a saloon. When the fire was near its height, he rushed into the building and was overcome. His family reside in Denver.

Alleged Counterfeiter's Printing Plant Found

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 5.—The printing plant of Albert Leon, the alleged counterfeiter, who was arrested in New York October 9, was brought to Seattle today from Nootka island, B. C., packed in three trunks, and will be shipped to New York at once to be used in the trial of Leon. The hiding place on Nootka was found from the following description furnished to secret service officers by Leon after his arrest:

"Measure 200 feet back of the cabin on Nootka island; pace 20 feet east and an equal number south, climbing down dark ravines and through an impenetrable forest; travel in a semicircle due north 15 more paces and pause before three fallen trees. There you will find the treasury."

Included in the outfit is a blue seal for stamping treasury notes, dies, a whole drugstore of chemicals, a unique printing press invented by Leon himself for stamping the paper and pressing together the notes with silk threads between, and the photographic apparatus with which the notes were photographed on the dies.

REORGANIZATION OF WABASH RY. ORDERED

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—"Financial readjustment and reorganization" of the Wabash railroad was determined upon at a meeting of the directors today. The announcement caused a surprise, it having been generally believed that the reorganization plan of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, Wabash terminal roads, would be accepted, thereby materially reducing Wabash's financial burden.

Winslow S. Pierce, once a prominent figure in all-Gould projects, returned to his early affiliations as chairman of the Wabash board and reorganization committee, succeeding E. T. Jeffrey, who continues as a director. Other new men in the board are Edwin Hawley, who comes in not because of any interest in Wabash, but as a practical railroad man; Robert Goelet and Alvin W. Krech, president of the Equitable Trust company, which is trustee of the first and of the refunding and extension mortgages of the Wabash.

One of the expected incidents of the proposed reorganization is the naming of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as syndicating managers. That introduction into the reorganization is believed in many Wall street quarters to have deep significance.

Relations Somewhat Strained.

Relations between Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Goulds have not been especially friendly since the unexpected withdrawal of the bankers from Missouri Pacific's financing early in the year.

Although one of the leading interests in Wabash reorganization is authority for the statement that readjustment will not involve receivership, that point is yet to be settled. It will not be decided until those who are to assume control of the property have made a careful examination into its physical and financial condition.

Conjecture as to the future of Wabash became rife as soon as announcement of reorganization was published. It is believed in financial circles that control of the property has been wrested from the Goulds, and the fact that Chairman Pierce occupies a similar position with the Western Maryland, once a Gould line but now owned by the Rockefellers, gave rise to the thought that the Wabash might now be acquired by those interests.

ITALIANS ARE IN CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Tripoli now virtually is in the undisputed possession of Italy, according to a dispatch received at the Italian embassy here tonight from the Italian minister of foreign affairs. The dispatch follows:

"Italian troops have occupied Ainzara. This victory clears the Turks away from the entire oasis, shutting them off from the coast and thus deciding the situation in Tripolinana."

The Italians captured eight guns and ammunition and provisions, according to the dispatch. The losses are not mentioned, though the battle was apparently sanguinary.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Giornale Italiano of this city has received a Tripoli cablegram bearing on the allegations of Italian atrocities at that place. The message, dated December 5, and signed by the correspondents of two English and two French newspapers, says:

"The correspondents witnessed the events in Tripoli from October 23 to October 30, and they affirm that the Italian soldiers have not been guilty of the atrocities they have been accused of by some newspapers; also that the executions ordered here have been but the ones necessary in repression of prearranged revolt among the Arabs, who had previously submitted to the Italians. We affirm, further, that Moslems perpetrated on Christian prisoners and wounded atrocious tortures and mutilations."

PERSIA COMMANDS RUSSIA TO CEASE

Ultimatum Declares Former Will Take Offensive if Orders Disobeyed

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Morning Post's Teheran correspondent says Persia has presented an ultimatum to Russia demanding that the Russian troops shall not proceed beyond Kasbin and that orders for further drafts of troops shall be countermanded. Unless these terms are conceded within 30 hours Persia will take the offensive.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Persia has made an appeal to Great Britain to act as an intermediary in an effort to negotiate a settlement of the crisis with Russia according to dispatches received here tonight from semiofficial sources in Teheran.

At the same time an appeal was received from the united Persian press urging American newspapers to create sentiment with a view of reaching some solution of the situation compatible with the dignity and honor of Persia.

Russian Troops Stayed.

The progress of Russian troops toward Teheran has been temporarily stayed. Troops proceeding from Resht toward Kasbin and Teheran will be halted at the former city and held outside of Teheran so long as there are no disturbances there.

Great Britain is asked to assist not only in settling the present difficulties but in removing any enmity between Russia and Persia that might lead to further hostilities. It is understood Persia has agreed to be bound by any just settlement of the case that England may reach.

The provincial assemblies as well as the national assembly continue to indorse the actions and position of W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer-general of Persia.

There is said to be a shortage of food and there is suffering in many Persian provinces because of the cessation of all business and commerce.

FIRES MARK KING'S REHEARSAL

DELHI, India, Dec. 5.—During a rehearsal of the king's state entry today a fire occurred. A large store on the banks of the river Jumna filled with fireworks was destroyed. Earlier in the day another fire occurred.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Much anxiety is reflected in official circles tonight over the coming Durbar ceremonies. Before the king left England there were many persons in whose opinion his visit to India did not seem advisable because of the many outrages that have occurred recently in that country. This feeling has been revived by news of fires in Delhi, although there is no proof of an outbreak, were of incendiary origin.

MOB FORMER EMPLOYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A mob of 300 women, survivors of the Triangle Waist company fire in which 146 girls lost their lives, attacked Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the waist company, when the men appeared in court today to stand trial for alleged manslaughter. All the court officers in the building and the police reserves were called out to check the assailants.

With torn clothing and disheveled hair the defendants were finally released and escorted under heavy police protection to the court room. The women had been summoned as witnesses for the prosecution.

MEAT PACKERS GO TO TRIAL TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Trial of the indicted Chicago meat packers will begin tomorrow morning in the United States district court, before Judge Carpenter. Refusal of the United States supreme court today, to issue a stay in order that the constitutionality of the Sherman antitrust act, under which the accusations are made, might be tested without the expense of a long trial, brought the fight for delay to an end, it was said by attorneys for the packers, tonight.

The selection of a jury will begin as soon as motions are disposed of in court tomorrow. Thirty peremptory challenges will be allowed each side.

Only one question was not settled tonight by the defense, or if settled, was not made public. That was whether an attempt would be made to try the packers one at a time instead of concurrently. This, it was known, United States District Attorney Wilkerson was prepared to combat, inasmuch as the men were on trial for alleged conspiracy.

It will take a day and a half for the defense to present its side of the case, the packers' attorneys said today. A complete detailed history of the efforts of the government to bring to trial the meat dealers will take the government attorneys nearly as long.

OFFICIAL CANVASS SHOWS GAINS FOR DEMOCRATS

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 5.—The official canvassers this noon completed the canvass of the vote of Bernalillo county, the first of the 26 counties. The Democrats gained in this county from 11 to 31 votes over the unofficial returns and if this ratio is maintained the Republicans will have elected only a few of their candidates for state office.

In an experimental way eggs have been hatched in bee hives by a New Jersey farmer, who found that the interior of the hives was just the right temperature.

Miss Mary E. Dreier, the head of the Woman's Trade Union league, who, in common with Arthur E. Holder, who recently told the employers liability commission in Washington that a man who is over 40 and begins to show gray hairs, has no chance to secure work, is equally positive that the same thing is applicable to the working woman of today. "In order to get work today," Miss Dreier said, "a woman must look young and act young, and in fact, be young. This matter of an age limit is harder on women than on men. A great many men seem to grow young under the daily habit of work, but it is never so with a woman, especially in the trades and the shops. The majority of them are forced to go to work when they are children and they have to work hard. The natural result of this is that they lose the bloom of youth earlier than women who are tenderly cared for and lead a sheltered life. In most cases they do not have to wait until they are 40, before they begin to show the lines of age, and the gray hair of worry and hard work. Th... if they lose their jobs the appearance of advancing years would be enough to prevent them from getting employment."

SCORES "SECRET FUND"

Missouri Representative Declares Privilege Granted State Department Is Abused

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Criticism of the president and secretary of state for their interpretation of the statute governing the secret fund for the state department was made by Representative Hamlin of Missouri, in a speech in the house today. Mr. Hamlin is chairman of the committee on state department expenditures which has been making an investigation.

In six years Mr. Hamlin said department officials had expended secretly $732,981, averaging $122,000 a year, when the secret fund appropriated for such a purpose was only $90,000 a year. He called upon the house to amend the statute to prevent the fund becoming "The very haven of official piracy."

As a remedy Mr. Hamlin urged the passage of his bill to create a joint committee of senators and representatives to which the president shall make an itemized report of expenditures of the money given him for "emergencies arising in the diplomatic and consular service." This makes misuse of the fund an impeachable offense. This committee it proposes should hold in confidence all information necessarily secret.

"I have found enough out about this secret fund," Mr. Hamlin said, "to make me anxious to know how many thousand dollars has been expended each year on portraits, pleasure trips, dollar diplomacy, increased salaries and other things that congress never contemplated should be paid from the secret fund."

Referring to the mystery over the department's actual expenditure for a portrait of Ex-Secretary William L. Day, Mr. Hamlin said:

"The committee had certainly got on a trail so hot that the president, when appealed to, directed the department official to refuse the Hamlin committee any information about the secret fund."

GERTRUDE PATTERSON HOME; WELCOMED BY RELATIVES

SANDOVAL, Ill., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson has arrived here where she spent her childhood. About 25 of her relatives had gathered there and prepared for a family feast and jollification over Mrs. Patterson's acquittal of the murder of her husband at Denver. She said to a newspaper correspondent that she had come to her old home to seek rest and quiet and would probably remain here two or three months before deciding what she would do.

She said she had received one offer to go on the stage but had not made up her mind what she would do. She preferred to stay with her parents, at least for the present. John Gibson, her father, said he might make a statement later in regard to his daughter's affairs.

Mrs. Patterson was heavily veiled as she passed through St. Louis at 3 o'clock this morning and avoided everybody except J. J. Hopper, a Chicago detective; Mrs. Farman of Chicago, her sister, and Charles Gibson, her brother, who were with her at Denver during her trial. She left the Baltimore & Ohio train at Odin, Ill., and was taken in a carriage to Sandoval, the next station on the same railroad.

Henceforth she will use her maiden name, Gertrude Gibson, this fact being disclosed when inquiry was made as to the newly painted letters "G. G." on baggage she brought with her.

ment, that it would be all right with the governor and that he would be given money to leave the state."

This affidavit was one of several filed last fall in Judge Whitford's division of the district court at the time of the injunction proceedings brought by the Northern Coal and Coke company against the striking miners.

That Governor Shafroth intends to send state troops into the coal fields in the event of further disturbances is indicated by the fact that he has sent Quartermaster General Lee to study the field. President E. E. Shumway of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company tonight said that Mr. Lee had already selected a site for the militia's prospective camp.

The coal operators have not yet filed their petition for an injunction in the federal court. Attorneys for the operators feel, it is said, that the court might refuse to issue an injunction in view of the fact that jurisdiction has already been taken by the district court and that Judge Whitford's injunction still stands.

Governor Shafroth tonight flatly denied that he had any knowledge whatsoever of the charges made in the Wilson affidavit, namely that officers of the United Mine Workers had conferred with him and that he was cognizant of the alleged plot to dynamite the boarding house at Marshall, Colo.

DENVER, Dec. 5.—The committee appointed by Governor Shafroth to investigate the complaint of the miners in the Fremont coal fields has made its report. The miners complained that the companies are violating the state law. The workers had gone on strike but they consented to return to work and present their grievances to the governor and the labor commissioner.

"I don't care to discuss the report," said the governor. "I do not want to add fuel to a flame. The coal mining conditions in the state are in such state now that I think I shall not discuss the report or give it publication for several days."

that combinations of capital allowed to become federal corporations should be subject to rigid rules as to organization and procedure, including effective publicity, and to the "closest supervision" as to stock and bond issues by the proposed executive bureau or commission in the commerce and labor department. Federal incorporation, the president declared, would not exempt any concern or its officers from prosecution under the Sherman act for illegal acts. Such an act could be framed so as to prevent "vexatious and unnecessary invasion by the states" but yet permit control by the states with respect to purely local business. The courts should be empowered, the president said, to invoke the aid of the bureau of corporations in determining the suitable reorganization of corporations dissolved by decrees. This work, he pointed out, might be intrusted to the proposed supervisory commission which "should be an executive tribunal, of the dignity and power of the comptroller of the currency or the interstate commerce commission."

The fact that it dealt with only one subject; that it was comparatively brief and that accompanying it was an appendix showing trust prosecutions instituted by all administrations since the enactment of the Sherman act in 1890, made the message unusual. According to this appendix seven suits were brought under this act in the administration of President Harrison; eight in Mr. Cleveland's second term; three under President McKinley; 44 under Mr. Roosevelt in about seven and one-half years, and 37, so far, in the Taft administration.

Mere Size No Sin.

The president frequently expresses frankly his opinion of the Sherman law and what might be expected if it were to be repealed. He says:

"The antitrust act is the expression of the effort of a freedom-loving people to preserve equality of opportunity.

"This statute as construed by the supreme court must continue to be the line of distinction for legitimate business. It must be enforced unless we are to banish individualism from all business.

"Mere size is no sin against the law.

"Much is said of the repeal of this statute and of constructive legislation intended to accomplish the purpose and blaze a clear path for honest merchants and business men to follow. It may be that such a plan will be evolved but I submit that the discussions which have been brought in recent days by the fear of continued execution of the antitrust law have produced nothing but glittering generalities.

"As the offense (against the Sherman law) becomes better understood and the committing of it partakes more of studied and deliberate defiance of the law, we can be confident that juries will convict individuals and that jail sentences will be imposed."

The attempt to find a line within which monopolies and illegal combinations might exercise moderate power and be supported by the courts, Mr. Taft pointed out, has failed.

"Theorists and others engaged in business violating the statute," he said, "have hoped that some such line would be drawn by the courts; but no court of authority has ever attempted it.

"It is not the purpose of the statute to confiscate the property and capital of the offending trusts."

Other messages on various subjects, the president said, would be sent to congress from time to time before the usual holiday recess.

MESSAGE WELL RECEIVED BOTH BRANCHES CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Taft's message on the trusts was read in both branches of congress today and was generally well received. The president's objection to a repeal to the Sherman antitrust law was approved by some of the leaders on both sides although the Democrats held that his first message should have dealt with the tariff.

Democratic Leader Underwood said the president and the administration were trying to overshadow the tariff with the trusts.

"The message is an able one from the president's standpoint," Mr. Underwood said, "but we feel that the leading message should have dealt with the tariff. There seems to be an effort on the part of the president and the administration to force trust issues ahead. I am opposed to a repeal of the Sherman law but there may be supplemental legislation to define it. I think the house does not favor a federal incorporation act."

Speaker Clark said he could not discuss the message until he had studied it thoroughly.

Republican Leader Mann, who has not always agreed with the president, praised the message.

"Strongest He Ever Made."

"It is probably the strongest President Taft has ever made," he said. "It shows that he is on the side of the people; that he is not controlled by the trusts and that he does not wish to cause undue violence to proper combinations of capital."

In the house the reading of the message was interrupted by applause from the Republican side. As the reading clerk was droning through the 6,000 words a majority of the members were following the reading from printed copies which had been distributed to their desks.

The senate heard the reading of the message with its usual dignified attention and then adjourned in respect to the memories of Representative Madison of Kansas, and Latta of Nebraska whose deaths were announced by a committee from the house.

For lack of something to do the senate will not meet until Thursday afternoon and will then adjourn until Monday. The upper body is marking time on the house.

The house will meet at noon tomorrow.

difference, though she was opposed to it. When she learned what she had done she rushed back to the booth and declared:

"I want to change my vote!"

She told that it was impossible.

"Oh, but it must be changed!" she exclaimed, and the election officials patiently explained that it was against the law.

In one of the west side precincts where voting went on throughout the day at the rate of two a minute, there was not a sign of impatience when a woman voter indignantly inquired why there was not a mirror in the place.

Brings Mirror for Women.

"Mirrors were not included in the election supplies," replied the chairman of the election board. Then he went to his home, around the corner, and fetched a "looking glass." It was hung outside, so as not to block the line of voters pressing constantly through the doorway of the booth. Everywhere the women were responsible for unusual election day features. In precinct 121, which includes "Labor Temple," a busy housewife, her apron still on, rushed into one of the two voting booths.

"Give me a ballot; I want to vote," she announced.

"But, madam, you must take your place in line," the election official replied.

She glanced at the long line and refused.

"I left a batch of bread in the oven and I wouldn't let it burn for either Harriman or Alexander."

And she went back home.

Caroline M. Severance, 92 years old, a former associate of Susan B. Anthony, made her way to the polls.

"I have waited 50 years for this my first vote," she said, as she emerged smilingly from the election booth.

MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 5.—With the man who admits that he shot and killed Frederick Winnerstrom, the chauffeur at Carey, Ill., September 4 last, in jail here; his brother-in-law, who also has admitted his part in the crime locked up with him, and one other man who is implicated by the confessions of these two under lock and key nearby, State's Attorney David R. Joslyn, of McHenry county, laid his plans to arrest three men who are still at liberty but whose names are known.

According to the confessions, there were originally seven men in the gang when Winnerstrom was murdered, but one of these was slain by his bandit friends a few days later in a quarrel over the division of money taken in safeblowing expeditions.

Forrest Knapp of Battle Creek, Mich., is the man who has confessed that he killed Winnerstrom. David Mawood, a patrolman and a brother-in-law of Knapp, has admitted he helped weight the body and throw it into Fox river. Edward Allen, a cousin of Mawood, who was drawn into the case by the confession, is locked up at Woodstock, Ill.

George Birch, John Lynch and James Menser, all of Coldwater, Mich., are the other three sought and the scene of activity in the case shifted to that town today. Detectives Van Natta and O'Sullivan of the Chicago detective bureau have gone to Coldwater and they expected to arrest the three today. Frank Hunter is the member of the gang who was slain. According to State's Attorney Joslyn his body was weighted and thrown into Lake Michigan, after he died, in a sack near Hammond, Ind. He was taken there by two members of the gang who shot him two days after the murder of Winnerstrom. He lived only three days and after [illegible] of the body the bandits [illegible] horse stealing in McHenry county.

According to the confession of Knapp, Winnerstrom was murdered when he refused to drive the thugs to Madison, Wis., where they intended engaging in horse stealing.

JUDGE W. BORDWELL

B. McNamara's plea of guilty long ago if he had been willing to dismiss the cases against his brother, but he refused, insisting that the latter was guilty and should suffer punishment. The first proposition from those interested in the defense was that James B. McNamara should change his plea from 'not guilty' to 'guilty' on condition that he should not be sentenced to death and that his brother should go free. The district attorney would not agree. Afterwards emissaries from the defense brought to the district attorney the proposition that James B. McNamara would plead guilty and be sentenced to death if the court so ordered, provided that his brother should be saved. But the district attorney still would not agree. Those interested in the defense continued to urge his acceptance of the last proposition for 10 days or more and until the bribery developments revealed the desperation of the defense and paralyzed the effort to save John J. McNamara by sacrificing his brother. Then it was that the change of pleas of these men was forthcoming.

"The notion broached in the Steffens article that the McNamaras, in the commission of the crimes as confessed by them, are 'two heroes' is offensive to common intelligence and repellant to the conscience of all just men—to say nothing of the abhorrence of the law for such sentiment—and I am confident that the district attorney was not influenced by any such sentiment in considering the proposal that the defendants should withdraw their pleas of 'not guilty.'

"Upon the entries of the pleas of 'guilty' both defendants placed themselves upon the mercy of the court and the responsibility sole and undivided—devolved upon the court to determine the punishment. That some mitigation of the extreme penalties demandable by the outraged law might reasonably be expected in consequence of change of the pleas in these cases is in accordance with the principle commonly accepted in the administration of criminal jurisprudence. That expectation has not been disappointed in these cases. At the same time the duty of the court in fixing the penalties in these cases would have been unperformed had it been swayed, in any degree by the hypothetical policy favored by Mr. Steffens (who, by the way, is a professed anarchist) that the judgment of the court should be directed to the promotion of compromise in the controversy between 'capital' and 'labor.'

"The lesson taught by these cases is that the law must be rigorously enforced against all offenders whether they be rich or poor, high or low, capitalists or laborers and that only by obedience to the law can society be maintained and its blessings enjoyed."

THE OIL STORM

Galveston Dispatch in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A storm suddenly springing up last night in the Gulf of Mexico off the east coast is attributed to the burning oil wells in east Texas and marks a strange weather phenomenon.

Heavy clouds apeparing as black smoke banked up in what appeared long rolls, when suddenly the whole southern sky was illuminated by flashes of lightning, which quickly changed to chain lightning accompanied by thunder and lasting 30 minutes.

The wind rose to 40 miles an hour and swept inland, increasing to nearly 50 miles in puffs. The intense heat, so the weather experts declare, of the burning oil created a vacuum into which the cold air rushed and formed the cyclonic disturbance whnch moved the sea.

TO AID NEEDY FARMERS

At a meeting between Superintendent Worcester of the Associated Charities and member of the Chamber of Commerce it was decided to raise a relief fund for the starving farmers of eastern Colorado. No decisive steps were taken at the meeting, nor committees formed, though one or two men, whose names are withheld, volunteered their services in that respect. There will be another conference between the two organizations within the near future, when more definite action will be taken.

CHESS PLAYERS MEET

Chess players representing the El Paso club and Young Men's Christian association met at the association building last night to plan the organization of a chess club and to make preliminary arrangements for a chess tournament in the near future. D. V. Donaldson was elected temporary chairman and Dr. W. C. Allen temporary secretary.

An executive committee, consisting of D. V. Donaldson, chairman, J. E Franklin, C. B. Schiev and one representative each from the Pikes Peak and the Elks clubs, to be named later, was appointed to make arrangements for the tournament.

A meeting will be held at the Y. M. C. A. next Monday night, at which time the club will be permanently organized and a few preliminary games played. All chess players in Colorado Springs are invited to attend these meetings.

SOCIETY LEADERS TO POSE FOR CHARITY

Tableaux at Antlers Hotel December 14 for Benefit Boys Club Association

Judge Julian Mack of Chicago who was recently made a member of the new court of commerce at Washington in a recent visit to Colorado Springs inspected carefully the Boys club on South Tejon street, and investigated the methods followed by those in charge to make the youth of this community more healthful physically and mentally. This famous jurist, presided at one of the first and most renowned juvenile tribunals in the world, in session in the Windy City. He was extremely frank in passing criticism on the local work and thought that in all the cities he had visited no one showed better or more thoroughly a practical and substantial method of procedure in entertaining jointly the youth of a community.

The many charitably inclined persons of Colorado Springs who for several years have been devoting much of their time to this association for the benefit of boys have been contending with an indebtedness of $[illegible] for many months an obstacle which has caused many change of plans in their desire to help increase the efficiency of this institution It is up to the people of the Pikes Peak region to help bury this debt by talking of the opportunity soon to be offered of viewing the living representations of paintings made famous in the salons of the world

Tableaux, with the young society matrons and maids and their parents too posing will be shown the night of December 14 in the ballroom of the Antlers hotel The representations are not to be of the old sort but bright and new, a liberal education for any person whether disposed or not to care for subjects of this sort

Two men of national reputation Hobart Chatfield Chatfield-Taylor and Wallace de Groot Cecil Rice both of Chicago who are visiting in this city and have had many years experience as art connoisseurs are drilling daily the actors and actresses The results, the claim are beyond their most sanguine hopes Many of the most beautiful and graceful society women of Colorado Springs will appear

The committee advises all to select their seatings immediately for the reason that the most desirable are rapidly being sold, Denver having taken almost 100 tickets during the last week The coupons may be secured at the music store of W R Willis 122½ East Pikes Peak avenue The prices of admission are within the range of everybody's pocketbook

CITY USED 165,066,000 GALLONS WATER IN NOV.

The water consumption in Colorado Springs for November amounted to 165,066,000 gallons, or about 5,502,000 gallons daily according to the report which B B McReynolds, superintendent, will submit to Mayor Avery today.

"As yet the snow fall on our water sheds," the report reads, "has been quite light, but we are not worrying about the matter as we are yet likely to have a normal precipitation, and that, with the amount in storage that we are conserving as much as possible, would be ample to carry us through another season"

For all purposes the city has 1,571,000,000 gallons stored There are 300,000,000 gallons stored for irrigation purposes in Prospect Lake and Pike View reservoirs. For drinking purposes there are 4,000,000 gallons stored in reservoir No 8, 60,000,000 in reservoir No. 2, 474,000,000 in reservoir No. 1 510,000,000 in reservoir No 5; 223,000,000 in Lake Moraine

The storage shows a decrease of 100,000,000 gallons during the month while the streams are pouring in 4,000,000 gallons daily. There are 162,958,000 gallons flowing to the Hydro-Electric company's plant each month

SORORITY GIRLS BAR DOORS TO BURGLARS

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 5.—Fifteen University of Washington girls huddled trembling and cowed in their rooms on the upper floor of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority house early today while burglars ransacked the entire lower floor, obtaining clothing and jewelry valued at $250. The thieves took the precaution to cut the telephone wires and when the young women were awakened by the movements of the men down stairs they found they were without means to summon help. Fearful lest the thieves climb the stairs and attack them, they locked themselves in their rooms, where they remained until they heard the burglars leave the building.

POPE RECEIVES CARDINAL FARLEY AND HIS FRIENDS

ROME, Dec. 5.—The pope today received in private audience Cardinal Farley, who afterwards presented his suite. Cardinal Farley also introduced several American newspapermen, altogether about 30 persons. The pope spoke in a kindly way to each, Cardinal Farley interpreting. The pontiff gave each his hand to kiss and renewed his expression of paternal affection for America and his satisfaction at the gratitude shown in the United States regarding the creation of the new American cardinals. He imparted the apostolic benediction to all those presented, extending it to their families.

WILL HEAR MANDAMUS SUIT AGAINST DENVER DEC. 12

DENVER, Dec. 5.—The mandamus suit of the public utilities commission against the city of Denver was set for hearing December 12 today by District Judge James H. Teller. Counsel for the city has asked a continuance until December 19. The commission seeks to compel the city to honor its warrants. The suit has been pending two months.

The late Judge Bliss granted a stay of proceedings to permit the federal court to rule on certain points in the Lusk-Wheeler case which subsequently was thrown out of court. It will now be tried on its merits.

Colorado City DEPARTMENT

SUSPENDED FOR 7 DAYS

Night Patrolman Daniel Colbert will be laid off for a period of seven days without pay as a result of his refusal to obey the orders of Chief of Police Taws last Saturday night. This was the decision reached by the mayor and the police committee at a meeting held in the mayor's office last night.

Colbert was ordered to report for day duty at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, when he went on duty last Saturday night. He refused to obey the orders, saying a majority of the council had instructed him to remain on that night. Later when George Reid, chairman of the police committee, asked him if he were going to obey the orders, he said no, and according to Reid, talked to him in a manner entirely uncalled for.

It has not been decided who will be appointed to take the place of Colbert this week.

ARE HEAVILY FINED FOR VIOLATING LIQUOR LAW

Hule Wah, Sam Wing and Jim Gay were fined $100 each in police court yesterday morning when they answered to the charge of allowing liquor to be drunk in their place of business, the California restaurant on East Huerfano street. C. E. Black, Lee Slinker and Robert Kerr, who confessed to drinking in the restaurant, were fined $10 each. The Chinamen were given until 10 o'clock this morning to pay the aggregate fine of $300, and the boys were given a similar stay of execution.

ONE DIVORCE GRANTED; ONE COMPLAINT FILED

Judge Little of the county court granted a divorce to Ella Burkett yesterday from Henry Burkett. She charged cruelty. They were married at Zenia, Ill., in 1884.

On the grounds of cruelty and desertion, Lillian M. Huppert brought suit against William Huppert in the county court yesterday for divorce. She asks for the custody of a 9-year-old daughter, Wilma. They were married at Rockvale, Colo., in 1899.

Local lodge No. 485, Woodmen of the World, brought suit in the county court yesterday afternoon against A. R. Huff, J. D. Dunbar, J. A. Lawderman, D. J. Guyre, L. D. Gardner, F. M. Wood and H. E. Irvin, seeking to collect $550, claimed to be due on a $1,000 note issued in 1910.

Joshua Hobbs will be arraigned before Justice Gowdy tomorrow morning, charged with a statutory offense. H. C. Clay, 937 North Spruce, father of Myrtle Clay, 14 years of age, is the complainant. Hobbs was arrested yesterday by Constable Gillingham.

B. A. Covington, who was arrested Sunday for stealing an overcoat from a Santa Fe train, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Gowdy yesterday afternoon. Covington lives in Denver, but is in this city for the present and is staying at the Modern Woodmen sanatorium.

Efforts of Chief of Police Burno to bring Mr. and Mrs. Riley Irvin, colored, to a state where they can live together again, proved of no avail, and yesterday he had to warn them that the next time they got into a fight the police would arrest them. They have been in several fights lately over the question of whether they should have to remarry following a divorce.

Judge Greeley Whitford of Denver is in Colorado Springs holding court for Judge J. W. Sheafor, who is sitting on the district court bench in Conejos county. Judge Whitford began the hearing yesterday in the suit of W. D. Lombard against the Otto Fehringer estate. Yesterday afternoon was spent in attempting to get a jury. The suit is one in which Lombard is seeking to collect $12,000 which he claims is due him from the Fehringer estate for his services as attorney. In connection with the suit, James A. Orr claimed that a desk in the office of Attorney Lombard had been entered and the evidence, letters and papers taken.

Wilmer Kromwell, negro, waived preliminary examination yesterday before Justice Dunnington and was bound over to the district court on $1,000 bond to answer to a charge of forgery. He is said to have raised an $8 check to $80.

F. H. Sage was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail yesterday by Justice Dunnington on a charge of vagrancy.

The case of Mrs. Cora Nagle against Carl Albin was continued in the district court yesterday until December 20, upon motion by the plaintiff's attorney. A heated argument ensued upon the hearing of the motion. The suit is one to recover damages from Albin upon the allegations of Mrs. Nagle that he cheated her in a business transaction.

Five Minutes Sometimes Makes A Big Difference

If You Are Suffering the Tortures of Indigestion and Have to Wait Until Someone Runs to the Drug Store for a Box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Free Trial Package.

The instant relief afforded poor overburdened stomachs by the use of a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet should be a reason for constantly keeping a box on hand—at home and at the office as well.

The Stomach Welcomes Quick Relief.

A Stuart's Tablet not only aids digestion, but it actually does the digesting itself. In other words, it furnishes exactly the same elements for the digestion of food as the natural juices of the stomach. The stomach, therefore, is not called upon to do any of the work except to churn the juices furnished by the tablet and then push the digested food along into the intestines, where it will be still further digested and the strength taken up by the blood to be carried to the muscles and nerves of the body.

So by taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after a meal you give the stomach the rest it needs in which to mend itself and grow well again. And you absolutely prevent the souring of any food, the formation of any poisonous gases, belching, foul breath or constipation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have done more for humanity and have caused more rejoicing than any other one agency that can be named.

Every druggist everywhere sells and personally recommends Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The price is 50 cents per box. If you first wish to try them a sample package will be sent you free if you write to F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FORBES-ROBERTSON WONDERFUL ACTOR

His Simple, Pure Methods and Repression Responsible for Play's Success

By J. R. H.

Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the famous English actor, made his first appearance in Colorado Springs at the Opera house last night, in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a play in three acts by Jerome K. Jerome. This great player last visited Colorado as leading man for Mary Anderson, 25 years ago, and he tells many amusing stories of his experience in Denver during his first stay there. By a strange coincidence, Forbes-Robertson's return to Denver, as a star, was made in the same theater in which he played with Mary Anderson, as leading man, a quarter of a century ago—the Tabor Grand Opera house—which was at that time one of the finest theaters in the country, and which today, Mr. Robertson thinks, is one of the most agreeable theaters to play in because of its compactness in the relationship of the stage and the auditorium.

Actor Greater Than Author.

Much has been written about Forbes-Robertson and his present success, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." Because of the supreme naturalness of the actor's work in this play, one is inclined to believe that too much credit has been given the author, for in this case the player really makes the drama. Without the great genius, the mellow art, the wonderful personality and fine intelligence of Forbes-Robertson, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" would not be the great sermon of human kindness it is. In the hands of an ordinary actor the seemingly beautiful speeches and the good moral of the situations would fall into the deadly commonplace of the mere platitude and the dull, unrelieved preachings of a mediocre writer. Its evident purpose would ruin the ultimate result it now accomplishes, for a moral lesson never strikes home unless carefully veiled, subdued and subtly presented. Forbes-Robertson, by his remarkable genius, subdues, restrains and represses Jerome's blatant preachiness and presents in its stead the suggestive, the illuminative, the inspired, the unstilted beauty of the brotherhood of man. One cannot overestimate what this actor does for this play. To realize this one must read the play.

The Beauty of Life.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back" is an imitation of the old morality and mystery plays. In the hands of Forbes-Robertson it assumes the dignity, the nobleness and the breadth we associate with the best of those old church efforts. Thus the drama becomes a great sermon on the beauty of life when life is understood. The piece tells of the awakening of a group of sordid people; of their transition from self-interest to interest in others. It preaches the happiness of giving. The Passerby, by whom we do not consider the author meant Christ, is a man who knows the joy of living, the pleasure to be had out of doing things for others, the rare happiness of real friendship, true love and conjugal affection. He is, in this sense, spiritual. His face shines with the peace of contentment and right living. Had the author intended him to represent the superhuman, would he not have defeated his purpose by at once discouraging his audience of the possibility of imitating him?

Into a boarding house where the people are so selfish that the author aptly describes them as a cheat, a sloven, a painted lady, a shrew, a snob, a bully, a hussy, a satyr, a coward, a rogue and a cad, comes this Passerby to rent a room. Little by little he instils the beauty of life into each soul. He reveals to each individual what he or she is missing in the mad rush for selfish ends, and makes the person see the greater gains to be had and enjoyed when life is lived in his fashion. The Passerby is the personification of the spirit of the brotherhood of man, the greatest religion ever dreamed of. He has no creed, no church. He is broader than any individual creed or church. In transcending these he includes them.

Forbes-Robertson stands preeminent among the actors of the day. He was trained in the substantial, well-grounded school of the old days, when acting was a noble profession, an art. In the difficult part of the Passerby, one which allows none of the ordinary emotions of the average character, he reaches the very height of naturalness. He creates the atmosphere of the character he is acting, and in this he shows his right to be ranked as one of the greatest actors of all times. Few, indeed, are the players today who can create atmosphere so real and vital that it envelopes the character itself, the other characters, the plays and the stage itself. By his simple, repressed, natural method, he achieves that realistic touch which is the aim of all true acting. His repression suggests supreme control and untold reserve force. He is gifted with a wonderful magnetism, a fine personality, which is tempered by experience, a brilliant mind and splendid training.

Why It Is a Sermon.

Witnessing Forbes-Robertson's performance of the Passerby in this play awakens dead ideals, gives strength to weakened purposes and renews courage for the battle of life. For this reason is "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" notable. It is not so much that during the performance one is touched to the point of tears at the sheer beauty of the performance, but that the beauty of it all stirs something within the spectator and calls to the front the old desires, the old thoughts, the old air castles, all musty and full of cobwebs, and makes them seem not only possible, but practical. It is this inspiration to accomplish something, great or small; to prove one's right to existence and to earn one's right to living which makes this performance a sermon everyone should see. The Passerby suggests the conscience of man, that still small voice which, though as years go by, may grow fainter, yet speaks and tells of the man one might be and ought to be. As one of the personages in the plays says, "I hear you in the night, I hear you in the wind;" so he typifies the better man, the soul and heart of beautiful life.

Fine Ensemble Acting.

The ensemble acting done by Mr. Forbes-Robertson's company in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" is a real delight. Not only is every individual player most excellent, but the manner in which they work together and build up the background for the central character is most admirable and quite remarkable, not to say unusual. It speaks of the fine stage management, the intelligent direction and the artistic perception of the star. As "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" is not a play according to the technic of the drama, but a series of episodes, so these actors present it in excellent taste. The staging is simple, yet in keeping with the subject matter and the spirit of the performance.

The upper picture is that of Princess Zoe Maurocatado and below that of her sister, the Princess Ghika, both from Bucharest, Roumania, who arrived recently in the United States. Princess Maurocatado when asked her opinion of the women in politics, said: "I'd rather have a baby than 10,000 votes. Three babies I have are worth more than all the votes in the world." The princess added that the women in Roumania have so far not bothered their heads about votes, as they find their time fully occupied with their homes. Both princesses were en route for Newfoundland to meet their husbands who had been hunting in the United States and Canada.

MAKE APPEAL TO THE POPE

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 5.—An appeal has been made to the pope in behalf of Rev. Bernard Zmijewski, pastor of a large Polish church in Hamtramck, a suburb, whose removal was ordered a week ago by Bishop Foley.

Rev. Father Lempke, temporarily appointed to take charge of the parish of St. Florians, has gained control of the church and celebrated mass Sunday, but Father Zmijewski remains in possession of the priest's residence, declaring he is sick in bed and cannot be moved. Father Zmijewski says the parishioners are in favor of him.

It is understood the charges on which the bishop acted included intoxication and certain irregularities in parish affairs.

Woman's Happiness

THE DAY'S NEWS IN SPORT CIRCLES

U. S. WILL EXPAND DURING OLYMPIC GAMES IN 1912

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—United States athletes will figure in more branches of sports at the Olympic games at Stockholm next year than in any previous Olympiad. The decision has practically been unofficially reached by the American committee and the chances are bright that the original number of athletes suggested will be considerably swelled before a final choice is made

In the past the United States has practically confined itself to track athletics, but the program now calls for expansion. The new move has partially been due to the efforts and suggestions of Prof. William M. Sloane of New York who in a recent talk with Emperor William of Germany discussed the feasibility of sending an equestrian team to the games. The German emperor is especially interested in equestrianism as an adjunct to sport and he strongly urged Professor Sloane to do what he could arouse enthusiasm in this branch in the United States

President Everett C. Brown of the Central A. A. U and member of the executive committee of the Olympic games, is making efforts to have several other sports represented. This, for a starter would include cycling, tennis, swimming and wrestling. He expects that the different bodies outside of the A. A. U will be responsible for their own teams, so as not to burden the American committee with financing the several undertakings

In swimming Chicago is likely to play an important part, as eastern cities have admitted that the best aquatic material is to be found in the west. An effort will be made to have the best western swimmers go into training at once, especially for the 100 and 200-meter and the relay races.

American marksmen are also certain to take part in the different competitions of shooting, which include trap shooting rifle revolver and pistol shooting. The colleges will be urged to send gymnastic teams, and there are enough good fencers in the country to hold their own with the Continental experts

President Brown believes that American cyclists will take advantage of the events offered in cycling chief of which will be a 200-mile race. The team competition will be so arranged that the best four from each nation will be considered as a team, and the total time in that case will decide the winners

DOOIN OFFERS BIG MONEY FOR RELEASE

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—"Just to show that I am not bluffing and mean business I have offered President Fogel of the Phillies $25,000 for my release," said Charles Dooin, manager of the Phillies, who has not signed a contract for 1912. "If Fogel calls my statement an attempt to get theatrical notoriety," continued the catcher, "he is wrong, for I need no press notices. My act is booked as long as I want it booked. I was never more serious in my life and fully intend to become a major league club owner.

"I have the necessary backing and if I don't succeed in buying the Boston Nationals we have another club in view.

"I regret exceedingly that I would have to leave Philadelphia and the Philadelphia team. I hate to leave my players. I whipped up a pennant contender out of nothing in a short time, and the only reason we lost the championship last season was owing to Magee's suspension and injuries to Titus and myself. Next season I don't think anything can stop the Phillies from winning the championship. But I think I owe it to myself to better myself when the chance offers. The chance has come and I propose to take advantage of it

"I will be in New York during the National league meeting and will talk the matter over with President Fogel. I don't think he will stand in the way of my advancement."

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 5.—Clarence Platt Lemier, of Martinsville, Mo., today was elected 1912 captain of the football team of the University of Missouri. Lemier, a halfback, played in every game this season.

DANCE FOR TERRORS FRIDAY

The managers of the Colorado Springs High school Terrors during the season just closed will give a dance for the members of the team at the Antlers hotel Friday evening. Fink's orchestra will play.

TAYLOR IS NAMED AS CAPTAIN OF TERRORS

Thoron Taylor will head the Terrors of the Colorado Springs High school in 1912. His selection as captain was made unanimous at yesterday's election. He succeeds Phil More, captain of 1911.

Taylor is the only man on the Terrors' squad, with the exception of Ahl, who got his training under Coach Richards during his stay in this city and who is now head coach of the Wisconsin university squad

During the season just closed Taylor played left end. He was considered one of the fastest men in the state interscholastic circles at that position

$200 SHARE IS ASKED FOR BOSTON NATIONAL

BOSTON, Dec. [illegible]—The Boston National league baseball club is for sale at a price but if that price is not paid I shall advise Mrs. Russell who is executrix and sole beneficiary under the will of her late husband William H. Russell to hold her shares," said William H. Winslow, attorney for Mrs. William H. Russell in an interview here this afternoon.

"We ask $200 a share. Mr. Russell and [illegible] shares. There are 1,000 shares of capital stock all paid in.

There have been several offers. The lowest came from Boston. There was an offer from Pittsburg interests but it was not from Secretary Billy Locke of the Pirates.

There has been no offer from President Murphy of Chicago nor has there been an offer made by Manager Charley Dooin of the Phillies.

If Mrs. Russell does hold her stock she will not be a director nor will she emulate Mrs. Britton of the St. Louis club.

The annual meeting called for Tuesday has been postponed till next Saturday. This will give more time to dispose of the club.

AMBROSE M'CONNELL NOT ON WHITE SOX RESERVES

By IRVING VAUGHAN

CHICAGO, Dec. [illegible]—Ambrose McConnell's name does not hold forth on the reserve list of White Sox players. The diminutive second sacker who despite ill fortune did valiant service for the white stockings in the last two campaigns has passed along according to a list of South Side players compiled by Secretary Harry Grabiner. The document which has been rounded up includes a complete record of every man now on the club roster and as the number reaches 40—the legal limit without McConnell it is a certainty that he has been turned back and that he will not heed the next annual spring call.

Manager Callahan said that the [illegible] of McConnell had not been settled so far as he knew. It will be recalled that during the waning days of the recent race Comiskey announced that he had sold the former Boston star to the Toronto club of the Eastern league. Right at this time McConnell opened and maintained a terrific batting spree and he wound up with the brilliant all around play which was so instrumental in downing the Cubs and winning the city championship for the Sox.

This work gave rise to reports that Comiskey had reconsidered the deal which sent the diminutive Utica lad back to the minors, but the fact that the transaction has already been promulgated by the National Association of Minor leagues and that McConnell's [illegible] is not among the 40 players reserved by the Sox makes it appear a certainty that either Rath or Berghammer will henceforth hold the keystone position. The former is a sensation secured from the Baltimore club and with Briscoe Lord was traded to the Athletics by Cleveland for the option on Joe Jackson.

McConnell passes back to the minors the victim of circumstances and not through lack of big league class. His chief ailment and one which kept him from ranking with the stars of the American circuit is a weak knee. Time and again this caused his withdrawal for weeks at a stretch and in play he was constantly forced to favor the injured member thus impairing his real ability. Last season his throwing arm showed signs of weakening and it was this as much as anything that finally prompted Comiskey to act.

McConnell, now 38 years old, was secured in a trade from Boston early in [illegible]. The deal included Harry Lord and brought to the Sox two men who did as much if not more than any others to keep the South Siders from the bottom rung of the ladder. They were secured in exchange for Frank Smith, pitcher and Billy Purtell an infielder. Neither of these men is now with Boston and the deal is still a thorn in the side of John I. Taylor, Red Sox owner.

Manager Callahan of the Sox said the plans for the spring training trip are far from completed. He likewise said that the location of the training camp had not been decided upon, but that it was practically between Galveston and Corsicana, Texas. Not knowing anything of the advantages of the latter place "Cal" is wont to favor the coast town where he trained some years ago

Galveston appears especially attractive on account of the sea bathing, which it affords. Callahan is of the opinion that bathing and fighting the big breakers will do as much to harden muscle as any kind of work, so if the Sox should go to this community it means that a dip in the surf will be on the daily program of events. It will probably be several weeks before a definite announcement is made.

WOLGAST ALWAYS PLAYED IN HARD LUCK; H. FORBES' ESCAPE

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Reports from the coast indicate that Lightweight Champion Ad Wolgast is making rapid strides to recovery from the effects of the operation for appendicitis to which he was obliged to submit recently. While the many friends of the little title holder throughout the middle west were intensely dismayed and disappointed when the news of his sudden illness on the eve of his match with Fred Welsh of England flashed over the wires, there was a general feeling of thankfulness extant that he had become the victim of the attack before, instead of after, entering the ring. In spite of Wolgast's great success in the roped arena, in spite of the fact that he has reaped both glory and large financial rewards during his career, he must be listed in fistic records as having met with more than the usual amount of ill luck pursuing members of his profession. Twice before a large, malignant, black hoodoo of innate viciousness camped upon his trail and put him out of the running. On the first occasion he suffered a broken arm during a bout with Jack Redmond in Milwaukee and in a later trial with Tommy McFarland the injured limb was again fractured. Both of these accidents occurred at times when Ad's services were much in demand and his bank account was seriously depleted in consequence. But the hoodoo got in what may be fairly considered its master stroke at Los Angeles. Wolgast was in absolutely perfect condition for his bout with Welsh, full of snap and ginger, hard as nails and longing for the moment when the clang of the gong would turn him loose to hurl his compact, muscular frame against the left-hand jabs of the Britisher. He was naturally a strong favorite in the betting, his adherents being willing to back him to their last dollars on his chances of stopping the visitor within the 20-round limit. If ever a luckless pugilist deserved sympathy Ad Wolgast certainly does in his hour of trial. Nor is sympathy lacking, for from the moment the news of the Michigan athlete's illness was first made public, up to the present time, messages of condolence in countless numbers poured in upon Manager Tom Jones from all parts of the continent. If there ever was any doubt of Wolgast's popularity among the rank and file of sporting men, that doubt has been dispelled by the nationwide interest shown in his case.

Back in 1900 Harry Forbes was matched to box a negro bantam named John Whitall before a Chicago club. Three weeks before the date scheduled for the bout Whitall sent word that he was ill and asked for a postponement, which was granted. Nobody knew what the matter was with Whitall, and nobody took the trouble to find out. Exactly seven weeks after Whitall showed up at the clubhouse ready to fight. All of the contestants in bouts before the club were supposed to be examined by a physician on the premises. Whitall was accompanied by two seconds of his own race, one of whom resembled him somewhat in size and general appearance. The club doctor made a physical examination of the lad who was pointed out to him as Whitall, and pronounced him to be in good shape. The battle started, and Whiteall, who was a tall, rangy lad, devoted all his attention to blocking Forbes' attempts to reach his body, meanwhile jabbing cautiously with his left. Forbes took matters easy in the opening round and was preparing for a rapid-fire piece of work in the second, when one of the reporters in the press stand went to his corner, and whispered excitedly to the fighter:

"For heavens' sake, whatever you do, don't hit that coon around the stomach, Harry,' he pleaded. "A chap who knows him just tipped me off that he is only out of the hospital a few weeks after recovering from an operation for appendicitis. The wound left by the doctor's knife is scarcely healed. If you punch him in the wind it's liable to open, and he'll croak, sure"

Forbes heard these tidings in deep dismay. If he refused to go on and fight the referee might have declared him the loser. If he did fight, and happened to send his adversary to Kingdom Come the future wouldn't wear a very favorable aspect. And then there was the chance that the information might prove incorrect, perhaps cooked up by some friend of Whitall who was anxious to save him from a trimming. There was not much time for consideration of the case, however, for the bell rang, and Forbes mechanically walked from his corner. But luck was with him and rescued the perplexed white boy from his difficulty. Forbes feinted with his left for the stomach—he would not have ventured to strike the spot aimed at for any kind of a bribe—the negro dropped his guard an instant, and over shot the right to the jaw. Whitall fell to the canvas and was counted out. The winner lost no time in notifying the club officials of what he had been told. Whitall was cornered in the dressing room and the doctor looked him over. The outlines of a fresh, newly-skinned scar made by the knife, several inches in length, was plainly visible on his bronze abdomen.

I'll take my oath that wasn't there when I examined him before," said the puzzled surgeon, who had not yet been let into the secret. Whitall grinned an expansive, white-toothed grin

'Yo' didn't all examine me afo', doctah,' said the reckless son of Ham cheerfully. "Yo' done lamped mah cousin ovah, de smaller man as seconded me. 'Clar' to goodness, sah, Ah wouldn't have slipped him in mah place, only Ah was scared yo' wouldn't let me go on. An' Ah suah did need dat leeah's end, doctah. Dem knife cuttings yo' gemmen does comes mighty expensive, sah an' Ah jus' had to have dat money to pay mah hospital bill."

"And just for that you risked your worthless life, and left me in hailing distance of a charge of manslaughter, to say nothing of your opponent," yelled the club manager wrathfully. "Here, take your coin and get out. If you ever show your mug around here again I'll have you thrown in the lake."

Still smiling placently Whitall accepted the reward of his labors, donned his clothes and departed hastily from the scene.

Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion of the world, who was stricken with appendicitis on the eve of his battle with Freddie Welsh, which was to be held at Los Angeles on Thanksgiving day. Wolgast was a favorite in the betting, and his sudden illness was a source of sincere regret among the fight fans all over the United States.

THE UNIONS AND THE McNAMARAS

JIM McNAMARA, arch scoundrel in the Los Angeles Times dynamiting case, is condemned to life imprisonment in the penitentiary. His brother John, who confessed to dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works, is sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment.

The judge who presided at the trial informed Jim that he well deserved the maximum penalty of death, but admitted that owing to "extenuating circumstances, it is the wisdom of the court to do otherwise." In this case, "to do otherwise" means to do the cowardly thing for certainly there are no "extenuating" circumstances. Judge Bordwell sentenced Jim McNamara to life imprisonment, though if he possesses the intelligence of a child in the kindergarten he knows that this monster ought to be hanged, and as quickly as possible. Similarly, he imposed a sentence of fifteen years imprisonment in the penitentiary on John J. McNamara, a wretch whose villainy is scarcely less excusable than that of his brother.

Apparently these sentences are the result of what is commonly known as "a frame-up." The McNamaras were induced to plead guilty by the promise of lenient sentences. They ought to be hanged; Judge Bordwell knows it, the jury empaneled knows it; the people of Los Angeles, whose "business representatives" are largely responsible for the "compromise," know it, and the world knows it. It is nothing short of infamous to put these men in the penitentiary where at any time they may be released on pardon by some feeble-minded governor or pardoning board, and where one of them, having been sentenced to a term defined by years, will be the beneficiary of the law which provides for the reduction of sentence according to the behavior of the convict.

San Francisco is an almost impregnable union stronghold. Who knows but its influence in California politics may cause the election in the near future of a governor of California so lacking in moral fiber as to heed a petition for the pardon of one or both of these wretches? Can anybody say that full justice has been done when two men who admit such crimes as the McNamaras have confessed are sentenced merely to penitentiary terms?

POSITION OF THE UNIONS. In commenting on this case we have already pointed out the embarrassing position in which the labor unions of the country today find themselves because of their stupid advocacy of the McNamaras. It is only fair, therefore, to place equal emphasis on the unanimity with which these same organizations denounced this precious pair of scoundrels after their guilt was confessed. Clear-thinking people could have asked nothing better than the widespread condemnation of the McNamaras by unions throughout the country, as printed in the papers last Saturday and Sunday mornings. In the beginning they had rallied to the defense of the accused men; they had unequivocally expressed their confidence in the innocence of those men and had backed their faith with their money.

Their accredited leader, Samuel Gompers, is authority for the statement that already they have paid more than $190,000 in cash as a defense fund, and that the money is still coming in. Intelligent union men now admit without exception that they were duped, but they are nevertheless able to distinguish between right and wrong when the issue is squarely presented to them, and it is altogether to their credit that in the present emergency they do not hesitate to denounce the perpetrators of the Los Angeles explosions with no less vigor than they formerly defended them.

From every part of the country the demand has been voiced by union men in the most emphatic terms that the maximum penalty of the law be imposed on the guilty men. Dozens of local unions have passed resolutions expressing this conviction, and their requests have been telegraphed to Los Angeles. Of course, it is not reasonably to be assumed that such a demand would influence a court in its passage of judgment. Theoretically, the court imposes sentence according to the law and the evidence. In this particular case it seems clear that the court unofficially recognized extraneous influences. There was a current of feeling in Los Angeles that the dynamiting cases must be disposed of as quickly and as completely as possible. Whether or not justice was done was of less importance to the active business interests of that hustling city than the consideration of getting the whole perplexing problem out of the way. Hence, the "frame-up." The McNamaras were persuaded to plead guilty with the assurance that in compensation therefor they would be given light sentences.

UNIONS WILL PROFIT IN THE END. Perhaps we see through a glass darkly, but in this case we see something less than the full administration of justice. Both of the McNamaras ought to be hanged; any penalty less rigorous is a compromise. But in all fairness it must be said that the failure to obtain a full penalty cannot be blamed on the labor unions. Prior to the confession of the McNamaras the unions played the role of dupes, but after the truth was revealed to them by that confession they came squarely out into the open and acted like men. They admitted their error and atoned for it by demanding that the full penalty of the law be imposed on the scoundrels who had brought them into disrepute. It is not the fault of the self-respecting union men of the country that the McNamaras have not been given the maximum sentence imposed by law, but rather that of certain business and political interests in Los Angeles which have been more anxious to get rid of a troublesome source of dissension than to see that justice is done.

But on the whole the outcome of this case promises to be the best thing for honest union labor that could have happened. To thousands of well meaning union men all over the country it has brought a sobering sense of realization of their position and has shown them that the influences which they can exert is not a thing to be used lightly. It has made the fact plain that when they assume the role of defender of a unionist accused of crime they thereby assume a large degree of responsibility to the public for the acts of that individual. If on trial he is found innocent the credit is largely theirs. But if he is found guilty and more especially, if he confesses guilt, it remains for them to explain to the public the justification for their enthusiastic defense of him. In this case the unions, having blindly rushed to the defense of the McNamaras, and having been stultified by the confessions of the accused, have manfully acknowledged their error and sought to remedy it by demanding the extreme penalty of the law. It is not their fault that the sentence of the court ignores this demand. But we venture the opinion that it will be many a long day before the intelligent union men of this country are again caught in another such blunder.

DO IT NOW!

From the Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

From the Washington Star.

The Canadian parliament is in session, and Premier Borden and former Premier Laurier are "at it" in sharp style. One of the subjects of discussion is the rejection of the reciprocity pact with the United States, which Mr. Laurier seems to fear has impaired, or may impair, the good feeling long existing in this country toward Canada.

The defeated statesman is mistaken. There has been no such effect, and none such is likely. We have appraised matters at about their proper value. As a fact, the Canadians are not alone in their excitability in campaign times over questions, imaginary or real, of national pride. Appeals, shrewdly made, on that score work with us to a marked degree. Tell the average American that a policy under discussion would not only injure the country's trade but threaten its political integrity, and if in the flurry created he is impressed, he is certain to vote against that policy.

Some bitter things against the United States were spoken by too conservative spellbinders during the reciprocity campaign. They represented us as a rude and crude people, powerful in numbers and wealth, but unscrupulous in action and dangerous to know too intimately. The Canadian electorate was told that the trusts had us by the throat; that everything was for the rich and against the poor, and that only an armed revolt could bring about the change demanded.

The talk was severe and absurd, but we had brought the charge on ourselves. There was American flapdoodle as authority for every word so spoken across the border. When we are in a tussle among ourselves over policies we indulge in the wildest extravagances of speech. No word ever uttered against this government by any foreigner anywhere has exceeded in violence words of condemnation uttered by Americans themselves.

It is quite unlikely that reciprocity with the United States was killed in Canada by the recent result at the polls. The subject is bound to come up again, and the next time it will be shorn of the annexation bogy. Surely that trick cannot again be turned. Something else of an absurd character may be attached, but not that the second time.

We need not doubt that Canada will follow with interest the tariff debates of the coming session of congress, and carefully note whatever may be said or done. The Payne law, if successfully tackled, will be revised in only a few schedules, but much may be drawn from what is done to them to indicate what revision when fully carried out will mean to all outsiders as respects American markets. It will be of especial importance to a near neighbor, whose hope is with us, to study our latest figures and conditions in all their bearings.

TAHITIAN FASHIONS AND OURS.

From the Springfield Republican.

Dr. Julius D. Dreher, former president of Roanoke college, writes from Port Antonio, Jam., regarding the tyranny of fashion which women permit, as follows:

"I want to tell you that I have read in your weekly of the 28th ult., with great satisfaction, the editorial entitled 'Let Women Command Their Freedom.' When I was in Tahiti I could not help admiring the erect and graceful carriage of the native women in their loose, flowing gowns, with never a corset and seldom any shoes. I contrasted this simplicity with the tight lacing, absurd dresses, and high-heeled shoes of American women, and often thought, 'What fools these mortals be!' I have never seen more graceful women than the Polynesians of Tahiti, and since my residence there I have realized as never before the absurdity of some civilized fashions. There ought to be an organized campaign against these follies, which are in some instances also crimes against nature."

Our civilization is an obvious failure when women allow the creators of fashions to make of them a never-ending and varying procession of absurd creations in dress and footwear that are primarily designed to fill the pockets of tradespeople. Men are likewise the prey of tailors and hatters and what not. The dictators of fashion, both feminine and masculine, devise every year changes that must be paid for forthwith by those who aim to be in "style." If by any chance becoming and healthful fashions are decreed, they are departed from with all speed, and folks accept the decree as akin to the ruling of Providence. The exhibition of weakness is laughable enough from any rational viewpoint, but it is also evidence of a crude and thoughtless civilization. Even the "savages" of the South seas do better, as Dr. Dreher points out.

MAY BE HEARD AGAIN.

From the Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Colonel Roosevelt has made a valuable and powerful contribution to the literature of a vexed question that is more than likely to be the paramount issue in the approaching campaign. But that is not all that is to be considered when the battle lines are formed; and anyhow he may have something to say for himself when the personal equation comes to be determined.

Sunflower Philosophy

BY WALT MASON

Sundry highbrows are denouncing rag time hymns the people sing; after getting such a trouncing they will fade like everything! All our anthems should be stately, so the angry highbrows shriek; but it seems to me they're greatly off their trolley, so to speak. Underneath the roof and steeple, where the hymnbook music rolls, there are divers kinds of people, all varieties of souls. Some prefer a solemn measure, grand, majestic, noble, strong; others get a greater pleasure from the slap-bang kind of song. Let the hymn be swift and swinging if some lifting thought it starts; what's the odds what hymn we're singing if it moves the people's hearts? Let who will so worship Milton and his harp that flashes fire; let who will prefer the liltin' of a joyous rag time lyre!

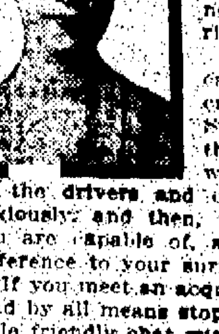
THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT

-BY-
RUTH CAMERON

"James R. Smith was killed yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident. The accident happened when Mr. Smith turned suddenly to avoid a pedestrian, who had stepped directly in front of the machine. The automobile crashed into a telegraph pole and Mr. Smith was instantly killed. Mr. Smith has a reputation as a very careful driver and witnesses say he was driving very slowly at the time of the accident."

One hears much all over the country nowadays about reckless driving. There are two sides to every question. What about "reckless walking?"



The above paragraph which I clipped from a morning paper, suggests the following for pedestrians:

In crossing a street, always look straight ahead, up at the sky or down at your feet, but never by any chance to the right or left.

If you are trundling a baby carriage, always select a very crowded crossing to cross upon. Stand a moment or two upon the crossing, as if deliberating whether to embark or not, while all the drivers and chauffeurs are watching you anxiously; and then, with the utmost deliberation you are capable of, and the most nonchalant indifference to your surroundings, make the passage.

If you meet an acquaintance in the middle of the road by all means stop right there and have a quiet little friendly chat with him or her. Under no circumstances bother to step up on the sidewalk.

If you step out of a trolley car never look about you, but assuming that the street must, of course, be perfectly cleared in honor of your arrival, start at once to the sidewalk.

When waiting for a trolley car, it is always preferable to stand squarely in the middle of the road. You might miss it if you waited on the sidewalk.

If you are a small boy, whenever you see an automobile coming, run across the road in front of it to see just how close you can come to being run over, without quite doing it. If you miscalculate by any chance you will have a fine revenge on the automobilist, as your parents can collect damages from him and he may even be held for manslaughter.

Whoever and whatever you are, regard all automobilists and drivers as your natural enemies, and in so far as you can without too much peril to your own skin, get in their way and hamper and annoy them.

I have entitled these few suggestions "hints" for pedestrians. I see my folly. A word to the wise is sufficient; a hint to most pedestrians is superfluous.

The Great Conflict

A Half Century Ago Today

DECEMBER 6, 1861

An attempt at Nashville, Tennessee, to draft citizens into service in the Confederate army, resulted in a serious riot, in which two persons were killed and several wounded. The boxes used for the draft were broken up by the mob, and Governor Harris was obliged to remain in his rooms until the excitement had abated.

Gen. George F. Meade left Camp Pierpont, Fairfax county, Virginia, with the Second brigade of General McCall's division, on a foraging expedition. He had with him a large number of transportation wagons. They encountered no Confederates. The expedition took from a farm near Dranesville, on the Leesburg turnpike, a large quantity of wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, brick and lumber; 27 hogs, a pair of oxen, a wagon and seven horses. They reached their quarters at Langley, Virginia, without incident.

Disease and Its Cure

By EDDY WOLFF.

ECZEMA

This is an inflammation of the skin that not unusually takes a serious form. It is characterized by the breaking of the skin, eruptions and scales. Nearly always it is accompanied by intense and irritating itching.

Eczema is the commonest of all skin diseases. Probably one-half of the skin diseases that afflict mankind are various forms of eczema, all of which are more or less similar.

Some of the internal causes of eczema are the use of alcoholic drinks, certain medicines and drugs, intestinal diseases, errors of diet and other diseases. The old name of "salt rheum" was applied to eczema because it was believed to result from some "humor of the blood."

External causes of eczema are scratching, heat, cold, severe friction and pressure, acids and poisons and many kinds of parasites that attack the skin.

Since so many causes directly contribute to the existence of eczema, the treatment must be different in all cases. The causes of each particular case must be determined and treated with a view toward their complete removal.

Internal remedies are used to some extent, as well as applications of electricity. Local applications of soothing ointments and antiseptic powders have been found of benefit.

In every case the attending physician will lay down certain rules of conduct and diet, which must be followed if good results are to follow the treatment.

LIMITATIONS OF SCIENCE

From Current Literature.

Every now and then one reads an outcry by some ill-informed scribe or has to deal with the peevish remarks of a philosophic poet, notes Sir Ray Lankester, the upshot of which is in the first case that "science" does not at once undertake the investigation of what the complainant is pleased to call the "unknown"; and in the second that science is unable to solve the great riddle of the universe, "Why are we here?" There is a notion among such people that some definitely accredited body of thinkers and teachers, whom they suppose, and declare to be, authoritative exponents of "science," has undertaken to solve all the doubts and difficulties of human beings, and that because this is not done without more delay, science (as they use the word) is a disappointment, and, in fact, a fraud. There are two main causes of misunderstanding in this matter. The first is that, in reality there is no church of science. There is no authorized doctrine, no one entitled by others to make promises in the name of science. Science is no more the special possession or province of any section or body of men than is common sense. All sorts and conditions of men can, and do prophesy in its name, without credentials and without responsibility or consequence.

The second misunderstanding in this matter which still prevails is due to the mistake which is frequently made of confusing science—the knowledge of the order of nature and the causes of things, with those conceptions as to the ultimate origin and nature of existence which have led mankind in the past into a variety of fancies and a belief in more or less significant fables.

Several Russian railroads are protecting their ties and telegraph poles against decay by soaking them for several months in a strong brine.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

December 6, 1881.

Mathias Locke, a ranchman near Fountain, claimed that he had an inspiration from God directing him to kill his wife and children. Before he had time to carry out this idea he was brought to this city, adjudged insane, and sent to the asylum in Pueblo.

A fire in the one-story frame building on the corner of Tejon and Cucharas streets, occupied by Smith & King's grocery store, completely destroyed the building. It occurred about 5 o'clock in the morning and was supposed to have been incendiary in its origin.

C. L. Gillingham, the South Tejon street photographer, had adopted the new instantaneous method by which he could take a negative in a second. A second is considered a rather long exposure nowadays.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

December 6, 1891.

The Rev. James B. Gregg led the afternoon Y. M. C. A. meeting.

Rev. J. S. Black, D. D., preached at the Presbyterian church in the evening. Dr. Black had formerly been pastor of this church and was here on a visit.

Rev. A. R. Kieffer preached on the "Aims and Objects of Workmen" at Grace church in the evening.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

The Sport of Love

[Copyrighted, 1911, by Laura Jean Libbey.]

There is praise enough for the woman who is cared for and shielded on all sides by devoted love, but there are few words of consolation for those who are the sad sport of love—the disappointed.

Every woman sends her heart bark forth, believing it is to sail on a sunshiny sea. She has need of sympathy and pity when she discovers that those dancing waves which she believes she saw afar off were but a mirage. But the ship that she sent forth could not return over the barren rocks of desolate years.

Theer are some who hold that love is not necessary; that human beings do not need it; indeed, that they are better off without it and that it interferes with their life work at times. Such unbelievers should stop to reason the matter out from the time of their earliest recollection did not a mother's eyes look love into theirs? Have they no remembrance of a father's fond embrace, affectionate sisters and brothers? How then can any human being forswear love since it is a vital part of his existence since the first moment of life?

It is intended that love shall be an inheritance that no one, either the rich or the poor, shall be without. When parents are taken away and brothers and sisters separated one may clasp to his or her bosom another love, different by far from those who went before and yet all satisfying—the love of a wedded heartmate.

It is one of the mysteries of the laws of nature that some loves wither in the bud as do the flowers on the branch and the unripened fruit on the tree, sad sport of the dew, the wind, and the sun.

Why these were not brought to perfection who shall say? It is quite as much of a phenomenon to reason correctly why some people should win love and joy in it and others yearn for it, the best part of their lives. The strange part of it is that it usually is the noblest of men and women who fail to win the little god's favor.

Their hearts are full of sympathy; their natures kindly ones. There seems to be no valid reason on earth as to why they should have been made the sport of love. To some it is given to send all the rich treasure of their hearts out without full assurance that their love is to be returned. They should not take it for granted that affection can always win affection in return. There are triflers in every walk of life who prey upon the too trusting and who make sport of love.

Love is too often sidetracked by devious ways and devices. Many a man has been laughed out of his fancy for a young girl by those whose every interest it was to keep him single. Women have been coerced through poverty and by many depending upon them to refuse the poor man's offer of heart and hand, and to accept a wealthy suitor whose fortune was already made. Such women are the cruelest sports of love, which has played havoc with their after life. To them love is but a dream without its realization.

The girl who flirts the best part of her years away, leading honest men into the hope that their affection was returned only to refuse them with a light laugh and seeming surprise when they lay their hearts at her feet, will find that love is not sport. It is a serious sentiment, the greatest, grandest, and noblest known to mortals. It is not to be dealt lightly with, but to be considered with reverence and sincerity.

Love hath not its seat in frivolity. The frivolous woman knows not its depth or its influence. She is but a bubble on the great sea of humanity. If love sports with her it will not break her heart, for its root never strikes deeper than the upper crust of the soil of her affections.

It is the woman who loves too well, who has not held her heart in leash, that deserves not the scorn of her sister women but their pity, their counsel, the aid of their helping hands, and kindly words. It is ever the way of the world to blame woman for her follies. But every case has its own pathetic side which should call for a tear instead of a sneer. Such misplaced infatuations are truly the sport of love.

ANSWERS

DON'T BE IN A HURRY.

"Dear Miss Libbey: For some time I have been corresponding with a young man of whom I think a great deal. But he does not answer my letters very promptly, saying he has so little time. I know his business does not keep him closely confined. Should I answer his letters as soon as I receive them or wait the same length of time he does? ADA."

Don't be in too great a hurry in answering his letter. No matter how busy he is, if he were greatly interested in you, he would answer your letters promptly.

DIFFERENCE IN AGE.

"Dear Miss Libbey: In our little town, where chances for a girl are mighty few, a young doctor has been paying me much attention and I have learned to love him. He, however, is a year and a half younger than myself. Do you think this sufficient cause to give him up? Everything else would be ideal between us. E. F. M."

No, indeed, it would not.

THEY DON'T LIKE HIM.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I have a friend who, until last summer, has been going regularly with a girl for five or six years. One day, when we came to her house, she immediately went across the street. In a few minutes her mother came out and said: 'I don't want you to come around here any more. E—— has been trying to get rid of you for a long time.' What is the proper attitude for my friend to use toward her? Would it be proper for him to write, speak, and be friendly with her or should he have nothing to do with her? We can think of no cause for this occurrence. G. D."

He had better stay away. However, if he wishes, he might ask an explanation; if he is sure he has done nothing to merit such treatment.

CKENS' SON TELLS OF FATHER'S LIFE

Probably no foreigner who has visited s country within the last decade has n given such widespread attention Alfred Tennyson Dickens who is to ture at Perkins hall Thursday even- upon the subject of "My Father His Works." The large eastern pers are giving him not only columns pages, and the Associated Press is lowing him to every lecture point. is very seldom that such an opporlity presents itself for hearing so aresting an address by so notable a n.

lfred Tennyson Dickens is not an glishman but an Australian, havemigrated over 40 years ago. Engd does not appeal to him as does erica, probably because life here more like his own life in Australia. tells many interesting anecdotes ut his father's home life and meth- of work. The elder Dickens spent much time and money in trying to prevent the American pirating of his works but failed to win anything for himself, although it was chiefly a result of his efforts that the international copyright law came into being shortly after his death.

Standing room has gone at a premium at every lecture yet given in this country, and those who expect to attend should make arrangements for seats at once. The lecture will be given in Perkins hall next Thursday evening. Tickets on sale and reservations may be made at Knight-Campbell's.

MAX DILL COMING

No comedian of Teutonic persuasion on the stage today as the following possessed by Max Dill. By the majority of critics he has been acclaimed the greatest portrayer of German musical comedy roles. His style is essentially distinctive. He does strain to score laughs. He is hilariously funny through the use of quiet, repressive methods. His accent is delicious and unexaggerated, his short choppy gestures bring a laugh by their admirably simulated awkwardness and his famous goo-goo eyes are wonderfully expression full. In fact he is irresistible. In "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" Mr. Dill makes the one biggest hit of his entire career. There are 50 people in the company, for the requirements of the production are great. He will appear at the Opera house Monday night.

GRACE VAN STUDDIFORD

On next Saturday night at the Opera house it is predicted that Grace Van Studdiford will clearly demonstrate by her performance in "The Paradise of Mahomet," that there is still no more popular form of musical diversion for our theatergoers than clean and wholesome comic opera of the kind that she herself helped so much to popularize when she last toured the west in "Red Feather." That was but a few seasons ago, yet with all this flood of ragtime melodies and generally insipid musical compositions that have been heard on our stage since then, how long it really does seem since the public had good music and good singing to enjoy. A crowded house is certain to welcome this deservedly popular prima donna and the splendid aggregation of vocalists and comedians, which Manager Daniel V. Arthur has gathered around her, including Laura Burt, John J. McCowan, Florence Rother, Florence Kolb, Hudson Freeborn and a host of others.

It is reported that a regular ovation has been accorded Grace Van Studdiford and her associate singers wherever they have appeared in their tour of the west this season. With a song bird like Miss Van Studdiford to thrill and delight them, lovers of the best in music have been attending her performances in "The Paradise of Mahomet" in such goodly numbers as to refute completely the oft-repeated statement of late there is no longer much demand for good singing and brilliant comedy upon the American stage. Her appearance here will undoubtedly be a repetition of her reception elsewhere, for Miss Van Studdiford has long been held in the highest esteem by local theatergoers who remember her brilliant singing in "Red Feather" a few years ago.

ANNA HELD COMING

When F. Ziegfeld, Jr., presents Anna Held, in his master musical production "Miss Innocence" at the Opera house on Tuesday night he will introduce to local theatergoers a new and distinct type of chorus girl, which, as "Kid Burns" would say, "bear the label of 'intermediate.'" In Mr. Ziegfeld's latest chorus there are no "show" girls, no "broilers" nor "squabs." The first, second, or for that matter, all the rows are made up of distinguished types of young women, medium in size, medium in height and shape, but unusually gifted in ability. The manager, who is famous on two sides of the Atlantic for his judgment in selecting beautiful chorus girls, boasts of the fact that his present collection is the most attractive on earth, and furthermore he declares that 90 per cent of them possess rare stage talents. Mr. Zeigfeld, who first introduced the large show girl in America, has come to the conclusion that the public has become tired of the display of immense women on the stage for the sole purpose of exhibiting effective gowns and gorgeous shape[illegible] in "Miss Innocence" he is offering an entirely different type of stage beauties.

Seats will be on sale Friday morning.

The Wonderful Transfigurator, Who Opens at the Majestic Saturday.

"WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER"

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" has achieved a longevity on the stage seldom accorded a dramatized novel. Its lasting success may in a measure be attributed to the charming actresses who have appeared as the willful and alluring "Princess Mary Tudor," since Julia Marlowe brought to life this beautiful daughter of the Tudors. Probably the most signal success in the part has been won by Anna Day, who will appear at the Opera house next week.

Local theatergoers will remember Miss Day's appearance here before, when she was credited with one of the greatest hits of the season. The enthusiastic critic has described Miss Day as "possessing the best points of Eleanor Robson, the dainty charm of Grace George, the sparkle of Henrietta Crossman, and her own indefinable charm besides."

Scenically the production is perfect and the company engaged in Miss Day's support is said to be the best ever sent on tour by William K. Sparks, her manager.

WHAT THEY LIKE IN FOGGY LONDON TOWN

Vaudeville has become such a universal art that today practically the whole world sees in the course of a year or two the same acts, listens to the same jokes and songs, and naturally if the vaudeville business is to be a success, must find entertainment in the very same things, whether the audience be of New Zealanders, South Africans, Europeans, Americans, or what not. And so similar are the tastes of the white race the world over that what is a hit in Australia or in Germany is counted upon to be equally popular, or nearly so, in this country or any other where vaudeville flourishes.

Nevertheless, each nation undoubtedly retains to some extent its characteristic tastes, and the force of long custom surrounds its acts and actors with an atmosphere distinctively local. For that reason, foreign acts are doubly interesting—they give one a line on what vaudeville goers like in some other quarter of the globe. This is illustrated with the singing act of Ida Barr, at the Majestic, this week. Miss Barr was a hit in the London music halls, and her personality, songs and singing have a distinctive London flavor. So if "Little Lunnon" wants to get any new tips on the atmosphere of the old town, all that is needed is to see and hear Ida Barr.

Four good acts, including a screamingly funny sketch, some unusually good motion pictures and the orchestra make up the bill. Performances at 2:45, 7:30 and 9:10. Admission, only 10c, 20c and 30c.

GREAT TRANSFIGURATOR BOOKED AT MAJESTIC

One of the leading feature acts in vaudeville will be the headliner at the Majestic, opening Saturday, in the shape of Robert Fulgora. A Denver critic, writing of his appearance in this city this week, says:

"Robert Fulgora is here, and that is sufficient for devotees of vaudeville, for he is known throughout America as the leading character impersonator and quick-change artist. Mr. Fulgora does not retire behind a screen to make his changes, but in a flash, and in full view of his audiences, will transform himself from George Washington to an Irish policeman, or from Robert E. Lee to an old market woman, making the change seemingly with a wave of the hand. His transfigurations are so rapid that they are akin to magic."

THE UNIONS AND THE McNAMARAS

JIM McNAMARA, arch scoundrel in the Los Angeles Times dynamiting case, is condemned to life imprisonment in the penitentiary. His brother John, who confessed to dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works, is sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment.

The judge who presided at the trial informed Jim that he well deserved the maximum penalty of death, but admitted that owing to "extenuating circumstances, it is the wisdom of the court to do otherwise." In this case, "to do otherwise" means to do the cowardly thing, for certainly there are no "extenuating" circumstances. Judge Bordwell sentenced Jim McNamara to life imprisonment, though if he possesses the intelligence of a child in the kindergarten he knows that this monster ought to be hanged, and as quickly as possible. Similarly, he imposed a sentence of fifteen years imprisonment in the penitentiary on John J. McNamara, a wretch whose villainy is scarcely less excusable than that of his brother.

Apparently these sentences are the result of what is commonly known as "a frame-up." The McNamaras were induced to plead guilty by the promise of lenient sentences. They ought to be hanged. Judge Bordwell knows it, the jury empaneled knows it; the people of Los Angeles, whose "business representatives" are largely responsible for the "compromise," know it, and the world knows it. It is nothing short of infamous to put these men in the penitentiary where at any time they may be released on pardon by some feebleminded governor or pardoning board, and where one of them, having been sentenced to a term defined by years, will be the beneficiary of the law which provides for the reduction of sentence according to the behavior of the convict.

San Francisco is an almost impregnable union stronghold. Who knows but its influence in California politics may cause the election in the near future of a governor of California so lacking in moral fiber as to heed a petition for the pardon of one or both of these wretches? Can anybody say that full justice has been done when two men who admit such crimes as the McNamaras have confessed are sentenced merely to penitentiary terms?

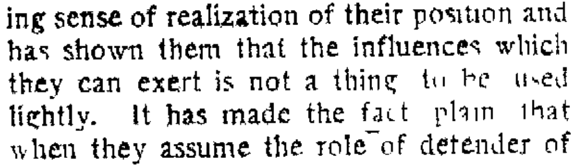
POSITION OF THE UNIONS. In commenting on this case we have already pointed out the embarrassing position in which the labor unions of the country today find themselves because of their stupid advocacy of the McNamaras. It is only fair, therefore, to place equal emphasis on the unanimity with which these same organizations denounced this precious pair of scoundrels after their guilt was confessed. Clear-thinking people could have asked nothing better than the widespread condemnation of the McNamaras by unions throughout the country, as printed in the papers last Saturday and Sunday mornings. In the beginning they had rallied to the defense of the accused men; they had unequivocally expressed their confidence in the innocence of those men and had backed their faith with their money.

Their accredited leader, Samuel Gompers, is authority for the statement that already they have paid more than $190,000 in cash as a defense fund, and that the money is still coming in. Intelligent union men now admit without exception that they were duped, but they are nevertheless able to distinguish between right and wrong when the issue is squarely presented to them, and it is altogether to their credit that in the present emergency they do not hesitate to denounce the perpetrators of the Los Angeles explosions with no less vigor than they formerly defended them.

From every part of the country the demand has been voiced by union men in the most emphatic terms that the maximum penalty of the law be imposed on the guilty men. Dozens of local unions have passed resolutions expressing this conviction, and their requests have been telegraphed to Los Angeles. Of course, it is not reasonably to be assumed that such a demand would influence a court in its passage of judgment. Theoretically, the court imposes sentence according to the law and the evidence. In this particular case it seems clear that the court unofficially recognized extraneous influences. There was a current of feeling in Los Angeles that the dynamiting cases must be disposed of as quickly and as completely as possible. Whether or not justice was done was of less importance to the active business interests of that hustling city than the consideration of getting the whole perplexing problem out of the way. Hence, the "frame-up." The McNamaras were persuaded to plead guilty with the assurance that in compensation therefor they would be given light sentences.

UNIONS WILL PROFIT IN THE END. Perhaps we see through a glass darkly, but in this case we see something less than the full administration of justice. Both of the McNamaras ought to be hanged; any penalty less rigorous is a compromise. But in all fairness it must be said that the failure to obtain a full penalty cannot be blamed on the labor unions. Prior to the confession of the McNamaras the unions played the role of dupes, but after the truth was revealed to them by that confession they came squarely out into the open and acted like men. They admitted their error and atoned for it by demanding that the full penalty of the law be imposed on the scoundrels who had brought them into disrepute. It is not the fault of the self-respecting union men of the country that the McNamaras have not been given the maximum sentence imposed by law, but rather that of certain business and political interests in Los Angeles which have been more anxious to get rid of a troublesome source of dissension than to see that justice is done.

But on the whole the outcome of this case promises to be the best thing for honest union labor that could have happened. To thousands of well meaning union men all over the country it has brought a sobering sense of realization of their position and has shown them that the influences which they can exert is not a thing to be used lightly. It has made the fact plain that when they assume the role of defender of a unionist accused of crime they thereby assume a large degree of responsibility to the public for the acts of that individual. If on trial he is found innocent the credit is largely theirs. But if he is found guilty and more especially, if he confesses guilt, it remains for them to explain to the public the justification for their enthusiastic defense of him. In this case the unions, having blindly rushed to the defense of the McNamaras, and having been stultified by the confessions of the accused, have manfully acknowledged their error and sought to remedy it by demanding the extreme penalty of the law. It is not their fault that the sentence of the court ignores this demand. But we venture the opinion that it will be many a long day before the intelligent union men of this country are again caught in another such blunder.



DO IT NOW!

From the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Telling the average man to do his Christmas shopping early is like giving him a letter to mail.

From the Memphis News-Scimitar

Only a little more than a month till Christmas, better not wait.

From the Milwaukee Journal

How many more days before Christmas shopping will end? Who's got the almanac?

From the Atlanta Journal

Not only is it a good idea to shop early, but also to shop while the weather remains good. There is no telling what the weather may bring forth.

From the Indianapolis News

And while you are kindly doing your Christmas shopping early, remember that it will help still more if you do your Christmas buying early.

From the Rochester Post-Express

Now is the time for all good folk to begin thinking about doing their shopping early.

From the Kansas City Times

Most people would do their Christmas shopping early if it weren't for just one thing.

THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

From the Washington Star.

The Canadian parliament is in session, and Premier Borden and former Premier Laurier are "at it" in sharp style. One of the subjects of discussion is the rejection of the reciprocity pact with the United States, which Mr. Laurier seems to fear has impaired, or may impair, the good feeling long existing in this country toward Canada.

The defeated statesman is mistaken. There has been no such effect, and none such is likely. We have appraised matters at about their proper value. As a fact, the Canadians are not alone in their excitability in campaign times over questions, imaginary or real, of national pride. Appeals shrewdly made on that score work with us to a marked degree. Tell the average American that a policy under discussion would not only injure the country's trade but threaten its political integrity, and if in the flurry created he is impressed, he is certain to vote against that policy.

Some bitter things against the United States were spoken by the conservative spellbinders during the reciprocity campaign. They represented us as a rude and crude people, powerful in numbers and wealth, but unscrupulous in action and dangerous to know too intimately. The Canadian electorate was told that the trusts had us by the throat, that everything was for the rich and against the poor, and that only an armed revolt could bring about the change demanded.

The talk was severe and absurd, but we had brought the charge on ourselves. There was American flapdoodle as authority for every word so spoken across the border. When we are in a tussle among ourselves over policies we indulge in the wildest extravagances of speech. No word ever uttered against this government by any foreigner anywhere has exceeded in violence words of condemnation uttered by Americans themselves.

It is quite unlikely that reciprocity with the United States was killed in Canada by the recent result at the polls. The subject is bound to come up again, and the next time it will be shorn of the annexation bogy. Surely that trick cannot again be turned. Something else of an absurd character may be attached, but not that the second time.

We need not doubt that Canada will follow with interest the tariff debates of the coming session of congress, and carefully note whatever may be said or done. The Payne law, if successfully tackled, will be revised in only a few schedules, but much may be drawn from what is done to them to indicate what revision when fully carried out will mean to all outsiders as respects American markets. It will be of especial importance to a near neighbor, whose hope is with us, to study our latest figures and conditions in all their bearings.

TAHITIAN FASHIONS AND OURS.

From the Springfield Republican

Dr. Julius D. Dreher, former president of Roanoke college, writes from Port Antonio, Jam., regarding the tyranny of fashion which women permit, as follows:

"I want to tell you that I have read in your weekly of the 28th ult., with great satisfaction, the editorial entitled 'Let Women Command Their Freedom.' When I was in Tahiti I could not help admiring the erect and graceful carriage of the native women in their loose, flowing gowns, with never a corset and seldom any shoes. I contrasted this simplicity with the tight lacing, absurd dresses, and high-heeled shoes of American women, and often thought, 'What fools these mortals be!' I have never seen more graceful women than the Polynesians of Tahiti, and since my residence there I have realized as never before the absurdity of some civilized fashions. There ought to be an organized campaign against these follies, which are in some instances also crimes against nature."

Our civilization is an obvious failure when women allow the creators of fashions to make of them a never-ending and varying procession of absurd creations in dress and footwear that are primarily designed to fill the pockets of tradespeople. Men are likewise the prey of tailors and hatters and what not. The dictators of fashion, both feminine and masculine, devise every year changes that must be paid for forthwith by those who aim to be in "style." If by any chance becoming and healthful fashions are decreed, they are departed from with all speed, and folks accept the decree as akin to the ruling of Providence. The exhibition of weakness is laughable enough from any rational viewpoint, but it is also evidence of a crude and thoughtless civilization. Even the "savages" of the South seas do better, as Dr. Dreher points out.

MAY BE HEARD AGAIN

From the Pittsburg Gazette-Times

Colonel Roosevelt has made a valuable and powerful contribution to the literature of a vexed question that is more than likely to be the paramount issue in the approaching campaign. But that is not all that is to be considered when the battle lines are formed, and anyhow he may have something to say for himself when the personal equation comes to be determined.

Sunflower Philosophy

BY WALT MASON

Sundry highbrows are denouncing rag time hymns the people sing; after getting such a trouncing they will fade like everything! All our anthems should be stately, so the angry highbrows shriek, but it seems to me they're greatly off their trolley, so to speak. Underneath the roof and steeple, where the hymnbook music rolls, there are divers kinds of people, all varieties of souls. Some prefer a solemn measure, grand, majestic, noble, strong; others get a greater pleasure from the slap-bang kind of song. Let the hymn be swift and swinging if some lifting thought it starts. what's the odds what hymn we're singing if it moves the people's hearts? Let who will go worship Milton and his harp that flashes fire, let who will prefer the liltin of a joyous rag time lyre!

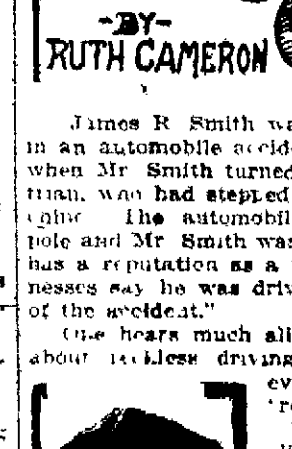
THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT

-BY- RUTH CAMERON

"James R. Smith was killed yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident. The accident happened when Mr. Smith turned suddenly to avoid a pedestrian, who had stepped directly in front of the machine. The automobile crashed into a telegraph pole and Mr. Smith was instantly killed. Mr. Smith has a reputation as a very careful driver and witnesses say he was driving very slowly at the time of the accident."

One hears much all over the country nowadays about reckless driving. There are two sides to every question. What about "reckless walking?"



The above paragraph which I clipped from a morning paper, suggests the following for pedestrians.

In crossing a street, always look straight ahead, up at the sky or down at your feet, but never by any chance to the right or left.

If you are trundling a baby carriage, always select a very crowded crossing to cross upon. Stand a moment or two upon the crossing, as if deliberating whether to embark or not, while all the drivers and chauffeurs are watching you anxiously, and then, with the utmost deliberation you are capable of, and the most nonchalant indifference to your surroundings, make the passage.

If you meet an acquaintance in the middle of the road by all means stop right there and have a quiet little friendly chat with him or her. Under no circumstances bother to step up on the sidewalk.

If you step out of a trolley car never look about you, but assuming that the street must, of course, be perfectly cleared in honor of your arrival, start at once to the sidewalk.

When waiting for a trolley car, it is always preferable to stand squarely in the middle of the road. You might miss it if you waited on the sidewalk.

If you are a small boy, whenever you see an automobile coming, run across the road in front of it to see just how close you can come to being run over, without quite doing it. If you miscalculate by any chance you will have a fine revenge on the automobilist, as your parents can collect damages from him and he may even be held for manslaughter.

Whoever and whatever you are, regard all automobilists and drivers as your natural enemies, and in so far as you can without too much peril to your own skin, get in their way and hamper and annoy them.

I have entitled these few suggestions "hints for pedestrians." I see my folly. A word to the wise is sufficient; a hint to most pedestrians is superfluous.

The Great Conflict

A Half Century Ago Today

DECEMBER 6, 1861

An attempt at Nashville, Tennessee, to draft citizens into service in the Confederate army, resulted in a serious riot, in which two persons were killed and several wounded. The boxes used for the draft were broken up by the mob, and Governor Harris was obliged to remain in his rooms until the excitement had abated.

Gen. George F. Meade left Camp Pierpont, Fairfax county, Virginia, with the Second brigade of General McCall's division, on a foraging expedition. He had with him a large number of transportation wagons. They encountered no Confederates. The expedition took from a farm near Dranesville on the Leesburg turnpike a large quantity of wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, brick and lumber, 27 hogs, a pair of oxen, a wagon and seven horses. They reached their quarters at Langley, Virginia, without incident.

Disease and Its Cure

By EDDY WOLFF.

ECZEMA

This is an inflammation of the skin that not unusually takes a serious form. It is characterized by the breaking of the skin, eruptions and scales. Nearly always it is accompanied by intense and irritating itching.

Eczema is the commonest of all skin diseases. Probably one-half of the skin diseases that afflict mankind are various forms of eczema, all of which are more or less similar.

Some of the internal causes of eczema are the use of alcoholic drinks, certain medicines and drugs, intestinal diseases, errors of diet and other diseases. The old name of salt rheum was applied to eczema because it was believed to result from some humor of the blood.

External causes of eczema are scratching, heat, cold, severe friction and pressure, acids and poisons and many kinds of parasites that attack the skin.

Since so many causes directly contribute to the existence of eczema the treatment must be different in all cases. The causes of each particular case must be determined and treated with a view toward their complete removal.

Internal remedies are used to some extent as well as applications of electricity. Local applications of soothing ointments and antiseptic powders have been found of benefit.

In every case the attending physician will lay down certain rules of conduct and diet which must be followed if good results are to follow the treatment.

LIMITATIONS OF SCIENCE

From Current Literature

Every now and then one reads an outcry by some ill-informed scribe or has to deal with the peevish remarks of a philosophic poet, notes Sir Ray Lankester, the upshot of which is in the first case that "science" does not at once undertake the investigation of what the complainant is pleased to call the "unknown," and in the second that science is unable to solve the great riddle of the universe, "Why are we here?" There is a notion among such people that some definitely accredited body of thinkers and teachers whom they suppose, and declare to be, authoritative exponents of "science," has undertaken to solve all the doubts and difficulties of human beings and that because this is not done without more delay, science (as they use the word) is a disappointment, and, in fact, a fraud. There are two main causes of misunderstanding in this matter. The first is that, in reality there is no church of science. There is no authorized doctrine, no one entitled by others to make promises in the name of science. Science is no more the special possession or province of any section or body of men than is common sense. All sorts and conditions of men can, and do prophesy in its name without credentials and without responsibility or consequence.

The second misunderstanding in this matter which still prevails is due to the mistake which is frequently made of confusing science—the knowledge of the order of nature and the causes of things with those conceptions as to the ultimate origin and nature of existence which have led mankind in the past into a variety of fancies and a belief in more or less significant fables.

Several Russian railroads are protecting their ties and telegraph poles against decay by soaking them for several months in a strong brine.

HARDY'S 16 NORTH TEJON STREET

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

December 6, 1881.

Mathias Locke, a ranchman near Fountain, claimed that he had an inspiration from God directing him to kill his wife and children. Before he had time to carry out this idea he was brought to this city adjudged insane, and sent to the asylum in Pueblo.

A fire in the one-story frame building on the corner of Tejon and Cucharas streets, occupied by Smith & King's grocery store completely destroyed the building. It occurred about 5 o'clock in the morning and was supposed to have been incendiary in its origin.

C. L. Gillingham, the South Tejon street photographer, had adopted the new instantaneous method by which he could take a negative in a second. A second is considered a rather long exposure nowadays.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

December 6, 1891.

Rev. J. S. Black, D. D., preached at the Presbyterian church in the evening. Dr. Black had formerly been pastor of this church and was here on a visit.

Rev. A. R. Kieffer preached on the "Aims and Objects of Workmen" at Grace church in the evening.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

The Sport of Love

[Copyrighted, 1911, by Laura Jean Libbey.]

There is praise enough for the woman who is cared for and shielded on all sides by devoted love, but there are few words of consolation for those who are the sad sport of love—the disappointed.

Every woman sends her heart bark forth, believing it is to sail on a sunshiny sea. She has need of sympathy and pity when she discovers that those dancing waves which she believes she saw afar off were but a mirage. But the ship that she sent forth could not return over the barren rocks of desolate years.

There are some who hold that love is not necessary, that human beings do not need it, indeed, that they are better off without it and that it interferes with their life work at times. Such unbelievers should stop to reason the matter out from the time of their earliest recollection: did not a mother's eyes look love into theirs? Have they no remembrance of a father's fond embrace, affectionate sisters and brothers? How then can any human being forswear love since it is a vital part of his existence since the first moment of life?

It is intended that love shall be an inheritance that no one, either the rich or the poor, shall be without. When parents are taken away and brothers and sisters separated one may clasp to his or her bosom another love, different by far from those who went before and yet all satisfying—the love of a wedded heartmate.

It is one of the mysteries of the laws of nature that some loves wither in the bud as do the flowers on the branch and the unripened fruit on the tree, sad sport of the dew, the wind, and the sun.

Why these were not brought to perfection who shall say? It is quite as much of a phenomenon to reason correctly why some people should win love and joy in it and others yearn for it, the best part of their lives. The strange part of it is that it usually is the noblest of men and women who fail to win the little god's favor.

Their hearts are full of sympathy; their natures kindly ones. There seems to be no valid reason on earth as to why they should have been made the sport of love. To some it is given to send all the rich treasure of their hearts out without full assurance that their love is to be returned. They should not take it for granted that affection can always win affection in return. There are triflers in every walk of life who prey upon the too trusting and who make sport of love.

Love is too often sidetracked by devious ways and devices. Many a man has been laughed out of his fancy for a young girl by those whose every interest it was to keep him single. Women have been coerced through poverty and by many depending upon them to refuse the poor man's offer of heart and hand, and to accept a wealthy suitor whose fortune was already made. Such women are the cruelest sports of love, which has played havoc with their after life. To them love is but a dream without its realization.

The girl who flirts the best part of her years away, leading honest men into the hope that their affection was returned only to refuse them with a light laugh and seeming surprise when they lay their hearts at her feet will find that love is not sport. It is a serious sentiment, the greatest, grandest, and noblest known to mortals. It is not to be dealt lightly with, but to be considered with reverence and sincerity.

Love hath not its seat in frivolity. The frivolous woman knows not its depth or its influence. She is but a bubble on the great sea of humanity. If love sports with her it will not break her heart, for its root never strikes deeper than the upper crust of the soil of her affections.

It is the woman who loves too well who has not held her heart in leash, that deserves not the scorn of her sister women but their pity, their counsel, the aid of their helping hands, and kindly words. It is ever the way of the world to blame woman for her follies. But every case has its own pathetic side which should call for a tear instead of a sneer. Such misplaced infatuations are truly the sport of love.

ANSWERS

DON'T BE IN A HURRY.

"Dear Miss Libbey: For some time I have been corresponding with a young man of whom I think a great deal. But he does not answer my letters very promptly, saying he has so little time. I know his business does not keep him closely confined. Should I answer his letters as soon as I receive them or wait the same length of time he does?" ADA

Don't be in to great a hurry in answering his letter. No matter how busy he is if he were greatly interested in you, he would answer your letters promptly.

DIFFERENCE IN AGE.

"Dear Miss Libbey: In our little town, where chances for a girl are mighty few, a young doctor has been paying me much attention and I have learned to love him. He, however, is a year and a half younger than myself. Do you think this sufficient cause to give him up? Everything else would be ideal between us." E. F. M.

No, indeed, it would not.

THEY DON'T LIKE HIM.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I have a friend who, until last summer, has been going regularly with a girl for five or six years. One day, when we came to her house, she immediately went across the street. In a few minutes her mother came out and said: 'I don't want you to come around here any more. E—— has been trying to get rid of you for a long time.' What is the proper attitude for my friend to use toward her? Would it be proper for him to write, speak, and be friendly with her, or should he have nothing to do with her? We can think of no cause for this occurrence." G. D.

He had better stay away. However, if he wishes he might ask an explanation, if he is sure he has done nothing to merit such treatment.

ICK NS' SON TELLS OF FATHER'S LIFE

Probably no foreigner who has visited is country within the last decade has en given such widespread attention Alfred Tennyson Dickens who is to cture at Perkins hall Thursday evening upon the subject of "My Father d His Works." The large eastern pers are giving him not only columns t pages, and the Associated Press is llowing him to every lecture point. is very seldom that such an opportunity presents itself for hearing so teresting an address by so notable a an.

Alfred Tennyson Dickens is not an glishman but an Australian, havg emigrated over 40 years ago. England does not appeal to him as does nerica, probably because life here more like his own life in Australia. s tells many interesting anecdotes out his father's home life and meths of work. The elder Dickens spent much time and money in trying to prevent the American pirating of his works but failed to win anything for himself, although it was chiefly a result of his efforts that the international copyright law came into being shortly after his death.

Standing room has gone at a premium at every lecture yet given in this country, and those who expect to attend should make arrangements for seats at once. The lecture will be given in Perkins hall next Thursday evening. Tickets on sale and reservations may be made at Knight-Campbell's.

MAX DILL COMING

No comedian of Teutonic persuasion on the stage today as the following possessed by Max Dill. By the majority of critics he has been acclaimed the greatest portrayer of German musical comedy roles. His style is essentially distinctive. He does strain to score laughs. He is hilariously funny through the use of quiet, repressive methods. His accent is delicious and unexaggerated, his short choppy gestures bring a laugh by their admirably simulated awkwardness and his famous goo-goo eyes are wonderfully expression full. In fact he is irresistible. In "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" Mr. Dill makes the one biggest hit of his entire career. There are 50 people in the company, for the requirements of the production are great. He will appear at the Opera house Monday night.

GRACE VAN STUDDIFORD

On next Saturday night at the Opera house it is predicted that Grace Van Studdiford will clearly demonstrate by her performance in "The Paradise of Mahomet," that there is still no more popular form of musical diversion for our theatergoers than clean and wholesome comic opera of the kind that she herself helped so much to popularize when she last toured the west in "Red Feather." That was but a few seasons ago, yet with all this flood of ragtime melodies and generally insipid musical compositions that have been heard on our stage since then, how long it really does seem since the public had good music and good singing to enjoy. A crowded house is certain to welcome this deservedly popular prima donna and the splendid aggregation of vocalists and comedians, which Manager Daniel V. Arthur has gathered around her, including Laura Burt, John J. McCowan, Florence Rother, Florence Kolb, Hudson Freeborn and a host of others.

It is reported that a regular ovation has been accorded Grace Van Studdiford and her associate singers wherever they have appeared in their tour of the west this season. With a song bird like Miss Van Studdiford to thrill and delight them, lovers of the best in music have been attending her performances in "The Paradise of Mahomet" in such goodly numbers as to refute completely the oft-repeated statement of late there is no longer much demand for good singing and brilliant comedy upon the American stage. Her appearance here will undoubtedly be a repetition of her reception elsewhere, for Miss Van Studdiford has long been held in the highest esteem by local theatergoers who remember her brilliant singing in "Red Feather" a few years ago.

ANNA HELD COMING

When F. Ziegfeld, Jr., presents Anna Held, in his master musical production "Miss Innocence" at the Opera house on Tuesday night he will introduce to local theatergoers a new and distinct type of chorus girl, which, as "Kid Burns" would say, "bear the label of 'intermediate.'" In Mr. Ziegfeld's latest chorus there are no "show" girls, no "broilers" nor "squabs." The first, second, or for that matter all the rows, are made up of distinguished types of young women, medium in size, medium in height and shape, but unusually gifted in ability. The manager, who is famous on two sides of the Atlantic for his judgment in selecting beautiful chorus girls, boasts of the fact that his present collection is the most attractive on earth, and furthermore he declares that 90 per cent of them possess rare stage talents. Mr. Zeigfeld, who first introduced the large show girl in America, has come to the conclusion that the public has become tired of the display of immense women on the stage for the sole purpose of exhibiting effective gowns and gorgeous [illegible] in "Miss Innocence" he is offering an entirely different type of stage beauties.

Seats will be on sale Friday morning.

"WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER"

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" has achieved a longevity on the stage seldom accorded a dramatized novel. Its lasting success may in a measure be attributed to the charming actresses who have appeared as the willful and alluring "Princess Mary Tudor," since Julia Marlowe brought to life this beautiful daughter of the Tudors. Probably the most signal success in the part has been won by Anna Day, who will appear at the Opera house next week.

Local theatergoers will remember Miss Day's appearance here before, when she was credited with one of the greatest hits of the season. The enthusiastic critic has described Miss Day as "possessing the best points of Eleanor Robson, the dainty charm of Grace George, the sparkle of Henrietta Crossman, and her own indefinable charm besides."

Scenically the production is perfect and the company engaged in Miss Day's support is said to be the best ever sent on tour by William K. Sparks, her manager.

WHAT THEY LIKE IN FOGGY LONDON TOWN

Vaudeville has become such a universal art that today practically the whole world sees in the course of a year or two the same acts, listens to the same jokes and songs, and naturally, if the vaudeville business is to be a success, must find entertainment in the very same things, whether the audience be of New Zealanders, South Africans, Europeans, Americans or what not. And so similar are the tastes of the white race the world over that what is a hit in Australia or in Germany is counted upon to be equally popular, or nearly so, in this country or any other where vaudeville flourishes.

Nevertheless, each nation undoubtedly retains to some extent its characteristic tastes, and the force of long custom surrounds its acts and actors with an atmosphere distinctively local. For that reason, foreign acts are doubly interesting—they give one a line on what vaudeville goers like in some other quarter of the globe. This is illustrated with the singing act of Ida Barr, at the Majestic this week. Miss Barr was a hit in the London music halls, and her personality, songs and singing have a distinctive London flavor. So if "Little Lunnon" wants to get any new tips on the atmosphere of the old town, all that is needed is to see and hear Ida Barr.

Four good acts, including a screamingly funny sketch, some unusually good motion pictures and the orchestra make up the bill. Performances at 2:45, 7:30 and 9:10. Admission, only 10c, 20c and 30c.

GREAT TRANSFIGURATOR BOOKED AT MAJESTIC

One of the leading feature acts in vaudeville will be the headliner at the Majestic, opening Saturday, in the shape of Robert Fulgora. A Denver critic, writing of his appearance in this city this week, says:

"Robert Fulgora is here, and that is sufficient for devotees of vaudeville, for he is known throughout America as the leading character impersonator and quick-change artist. Mr. Fulgora does not retire behind a screen to make his changes, but in a flash, and in full view of his audiences, will transform himself from George Washington to an Irish policeman, or from Robert E. Lee to an old market woman, making the change seemingly with a wave of the hand. His transfigurations are so rapid that they are akin to magic."

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Wall street displayed only a languid interest in stocks today. Professional operators spent the morning in waiting for the president's message. When the message appeared the operators did nothing. As a market influence the developments at the Wabash meeting were of greater effect than the presidential utterances.

When news of the proposed reorganization reached the street the only active movement of the day occurred. The Wabash securities tumbled to the lowest prices of several years and the whole market weakened with them.

Wabash securities, on anticipation of a favorable outcome of today's meeting showed the effects of heavy selling at the outset today. In the afternoon the pressure became more severe. The common stock yielded 3½ to 6¼, the preferred 5⅝ to 17⅝, and the 4 per cent bonds 4⅛ to 51. Before the close there was a partial recovery. The selling reflected the uncertainty which is now felt as to the future of Wabash. The strategic position of this line is such that the future disposition of this property, it was felt, might change the railroad map of the country.

Canadian Pacific became weak notwithstanding the fact that the November report of gross earnings showed a gain of more than $1,000,000. The pressure against this stock came largely from abroad. The coal roads also were weaker. Among the industrials American Can preferred, lost 2 points after it was announced that the regular dividend had been declared.

The bond market was heavy. Total sales, par value, $4,742,000.

United States bonds unchanged on call.

WOOL

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Action taken by the leading owner of cash wheat here in using newspaper advertising space as a method of finding customers for his property led today to the most pronounced selling pressure noted for weeks in the option trade on 'change. The outcome was a violent break in prices, with the close showing a loss of 1¼ to 1½c net. All other staples suffered in sympathy—Corn ⅞@1c to 1⅝@1¼c down, oats off ⅝ to ½@⅝c, and hog products 5 to 27½c lower.

Throughout the day the wheat market seemed almost on the verge of demoralization. Traders in general who were on the bull side were not only disheartened but also much puzzled at the unprecedented course of advertising millions of bushels of grain for sale as if the article offered was a department store bargain instead of the most important stock of food in the nation, approximately $10,000,000 worth. The advertisement occupied only a couple of inches of space at the bottom of a column but that did not prevent the market from dropping in nearly a vertical line with big houses liquidating and stop loss selling by small holders. Exchanges elsewhere especially northwest and southwest were equally weak. About the only other subjects that received attention in the pit were the continued big receipts at Minneapolis and the fine weather helping the harvest in the Argentine. The tone of trading became comparatively steady at the close. May, the principal option, ranged from 98⅛ to 99⅞c with the close 1½c net lower at 98⅝c.

Corn sold at the lowest price in months. May fluctuated between 62¾ and 63⅝c closing steady but ⅞@1c down at 62⅞c. Cash grades were weak. No. 2 yellow, was quoted at 71 for old.

In oats there was a great deal of unloading on the part of longs. Short selling, too, was of an influential sort. Top and bottom figures touched for May were 49⅝@¾c and 48⅞@49c, with the close ½@⅝c net lower at 49@49⅛c.

Extreme weakness developed in provisions. Tonight pork showed a drop of 22½ to 27½c, lard 7⅛ to 12½c and ribs 5 to 7½@10c.

CRIPPLE CREEK MINES

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Dec. 5.—The Cooper mountain mining district, about two miles west of Adelaide on the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad, near to the dividing line between Teller and Fremont counties, and probably having claims embracing territory in both, is attracting attention of prospectors. Two outfits left for the camp Tuesday. Last week William Snape, an old-time operator of this district now working for the Cooper Mountain Consolidated Mining company, owning seven patented claims in that section, dropped into town and hired men to work. Snape made no claims of having shipped ore of high grade, but admitted values obtaining from a strong vein under development in the main shaft, of from $4 to $12 to the ton. The shaft has been sunk 250 feet and the vein has been drifted on for a distance of 110 feet. The prospecting outfits will locate claims adjacent to the Cooper Mountain company's holdings if the showing warrants.

Nearer Victor miners are executing the necessary assessment work on unpatented claims on Straub, Calf and Cow mountains, within the Teller county line.

Vindicator No. 2.

Cartee & Co., lessees from the Vindicator Consolidated Mining company, operating the No. 2 shaft, are mining strong ore bodies at the second, fifth and sixth levels, and Tuesday purchased two of the Leyner stope drills. Increased production is promised for December. An improved long stroke, slow speed Leyner for hard rock, is now under trial at the Portland, Vindicator, Elkton and Findley mines in this district and the trial Tuesday is accredited with record-breaking achievements. No data will be made public, however, until the trial 30-day run is completed.

Bonanza Contact G. M. Co.

A 30-day prospecting permit with option of lease has been secured by local mining men on the Ellsmere No. 2 shaft and ground adjacent thereto, owned by the Bonanza Contact Gold Mining company. The Ellsmere shaft is situate on the main street of the town of Cameron, east of the W. P. H. and Jerry Johnson mines. The Ironclad hill contact lies in close proximity to the block and it is proposed to exploit the ground with a view of exposing this contact in the belief that a rich ore body will be opened. Work commenced on the property Tuesday morning.

U. G. M. Properties Producing.

Twenty-five cars of ore were shipped from the active mines of the United Gold Mines company during November. The active mines are the Wild Horse, Deadwood, Trachyte and Trail on Bull hill, and the Damon group and W. P. H. mine on Ironclad hill. The ore, shipped to and treated at the Golden Cycle mill at Colorado City, was all of milling grade.

PARCELS POST BILL SOON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—With the end in view of supplying a basis for the work of the committee on postoffices and postroads, Senator Jonathan Bourne soon will introduce a bill providing for a parcels post system. The measure will authorize an increase to 11 pounds in the size of fourth class mail packages from the present maximum of four pounds and at the same time provide for a diminution of charges from the present rate of one cent an ounce.

Pound packages will be carried for 10 cents with an additional charge of four cents for each additional pound. For the smallest package provided for, weighing eight ounces, there will be a charge of six cents. In cases in which the package does not go beyond the rural route on which it originates, the charge will be reduced one half.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barnes are spending the week in Denver with Mrs. Barnes' mother, Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford.

An ingenious idea has been put forward for the solution of the revolver difficulty in Paris. The recent deeds and misdeeds of the Apaches have caused such an outcry there that citizens have been clamoring for the general right to carry firearms in self-defense. A suggestion which has been made is that the government reserve to itself the monopoly of the sale of firearms in France and that each office for their sale have a list of people to whom firearms are not to be sold.
